'NATION' FOES NOW DISCARD SULLIVAN BILL

Discarding the Sullivan censorship bill as an ineffectual weapon with which to drive "The Birth of a Nation" out of Boston, opponents of the photo-play have shifted their strength to the Wilson bill.

The Sullivan bill has fizzled out.

Its tentacles were too apparent and its danger was written all over it, in bold, legible type.

Accordingly, the agitation has been transferred to the Wilson bill, which would accomplish the same purpose as the Sullivan document, but the designs of which are cloaked in less turbulent language.

Incidentally, this swapping of horses has aroused a sullen opposition in the Committee on Judiciary.

Outspoken opposition to the entire program and all its drastic provisions has developed in the committee.

"The committee, composed entirely of lawyers, is supposed to sit as a judicial body and pass upon the evidence for legislation presented to it," said one of the members, "but when the proponents of legislation present such a divided front as in this case the committee ceases to be impressed by their unogical attitude."

When the Sullivan bill was filed for consideration and was accorded its first hearing its principle was heartily indorsed by the opponents of

Vancouver Bridge Fires Laid to German

By International News Service.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 29.—Two fires, believed to have been of an incendiary origin, were started today on two Vancouver bridges. The total damage to the two structures was estimated at $200,000. A span of the Connaught bridge dropped when two firemen were on it. They were rescued. A second fire, which threatened the Granville bridge, one mile west of the other, was extinguished. Authorities express the belief that the fires were started by German sympathizers.

COLLEGE GIRLS PLAY "HOOKEY" AT WELLESLEY

Three Wellesley College juniors have been suspended, it became known today, for violation of the college regulations which require every student to register the time of her departure, and the time to be spent away, before leaving the town of Wellesley, and providing that every girl be in her dormitory before 10 o'clock at night.

Miss Edith Jones, secretary of the Student Government Association, gave out the following statement:

"Three students at Wellesley were suspended by the college authorities yesterday for breaking the rules of the college regarding being absent from the college without authority. The suspension stands until next February. This suspension is not new, as similar discipline has occurred before. The names of the three girls will not be given out by the college authorities."

Mystery surrounds the suspension of the three girls, whose names are withheld by the college authorities, on account of the persistent rumors which connect the juniors with the militia organization known as the Cavalry Club, near the college, just over the Wellesley line in Natick.

GIRLS' NAMES SECRET.

Not only do the college authorities keep secret the names of the girls, but they refuse to say how long the students were absent without registration or what connection the militia officers' club had with the offence of the students.

The college says that the only charge is that the three girls were absent without registration. This charge was presented to the officers of the college by the Student Government Association, of which Miss Rachel Davis, a senior, of Erie, Pa., is president.

Accompanying the charges by the student organization were the official recommendations of the accusers that the delinquents be suspended. This action was accordingly taken after the college authorities had reviewed the evidence and the student suggestions, last Thursday. That the action had been taken, however, did not become known, outside the college, till today.

The suspension has caused a sen-

Total British Naval Losses Are 6,747

By International News Service.

LONDON, April 29.—British naval losses up to the end of March totalled 417 officers and 6,330 men killed, a total of 6,747, Thomas J. MacNamara, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, made this announcement today in the House of Commons. During the month of February, March and April, 31 English ships were torpedoed by German submarines, eight in February, 17 in March and six in April.

NO QUARREL WITH MAYOR, SAYS ROURKE

Commissioner of Public Works Louis K. Rourke, who stole a march on Mayor Curley by resigning, after Mayor Curley had declared he would not reappoint Mr. Rourke when his term expires tomorrow, said today that he had no quarrel with the Mayor in the matter.

"I don't quarrel with anybody," said Mr. Rourke. "But after the Mayor's statement, there was nothing for me to do but resign."

Mr. Rourke was asked:

"Is the criticism of the condition of Boston streets justified? What is their condition?"

"Bad," said Mr. Rourke emphatically.

"Why?"

"No money," the commissioner replied; and then he continued:

"A few days ago Bridgeport—you know Bridgeport—awarded a contract for $250,000 for repaving. And Bridgeport's streets are in pretty good shape, too.

"Here in Boston, for comparison, I planned by cutting down on other departments to get about $50,000 for repaving.

"Certainly there won't be more than $100,000. As to what ought to be spent, in my opinion Boston ought to spend a million dollars a year for ten years.

"A million a year needed, and I got less than $100,000 this year, and had to save that out of other items.

"The $60,000 or so will pay for repaving Tremont street from Scollay square to Boylston, and for repaving a street in Brighton—about one mile in all.

"We have in Boston today three hundred miles of macadam—what I call 'mud roads.' In the borough of Manhattan there's not a yard of macadam.

"Yet this three hundred miles makes two-thirds of our total street mileage—in macadam.

"We have about 160 miles of granite blocks. Three or four miles of that is in first class condition. About half of it, I should say, is in fair condition. The rest needs work or replacement.

"The money appropriated for this department is for me to spend as I think best. They're trying to get a budget so they can appropriate for each item separately, but at present I have the decision. And it took manoeuvring and cutting to get the $60,000.

"To get more we'd have to cut down on other expenditures outside my department or raise the tax rate."

The Mayor is said to have expected that Rourke would willingly remain in office until his successor was appointed, as the law leaves a department head in his position after the expiration of his term unless succeeded.

By not discharging Rourke, but allowing him to be automatically discharged at the end of his term through the ultimate appointment of a successor, the Mayor is following out his promise several months ago not to remove Rourke so long as his work was as efficient as in the past."

Duke Wedding Reveals Double Romance

BIG BATTLE FOUGHT ON THE DARDANELLES

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, April 29.—(By Wireless)—The land attack by the allies upon the Dardanelles has completely collapsed, according to dispatches received from Constantinople today which state that the Turkish army, under General Liman von Sanders, has driven from the Gallipoli peninsula all the 80,000 troops which attempted to gain a foothold there. German military experts declare that this outcome of the allies' efforts was to be expected.

Lobster Army Invades Boston, 200,000 Strong

Away with gloom, here come the lobs.
Away with all the adieus;
On the Gay White Way just hear the noise
Of ordering up the Lobsters.
—Broiled Live Lobsters.

If you love 'em, prepare to eat 'em now.

There're here, thousands of 'em, ready for boiling, broiling, frying, chowder, salad or what-not.

A gigantic army of lobsters swooped down on Boston today, successfully eluding the big guns of the seven forts down the harbor and gaining the waterfront. They made a flank attack on the high cost of lobsters, bringing the price away down.

There were 214,375 of them and they came in on the steamer Boston from Yarmouth, N. S. It was one of the biggest shipments of lobsters ever to come into this port.

Shortly after they came and conquered, live lobsters were selling at twenty cents a pound retail. They literally cut the price in half, did today's shipment.

Tomorrow the Plant liner Halifax will bring in 95,750 more live lobsters. Incoming lobster smacks have brought in more than 75,000 others, and before the week is out half a million live lobsters will have arrived.

TURKS REPORT DESTRUCTION OF A TRANSPORT

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE (via Berlin and Amsterdam), April 29.—Destruction of an allied transport off Gallipoli peninsula, and defeat of the British forces landed at Gaba Tepeh, are the chief features of an official statement issued at the War Office today.

Gaba Tepeh is the only point at which, according to yesterday's official reports, the allies' land forces have succeeded in maintaining a foothold. Today's statement says that the enemy was driven back at Gaba Tepeh on Tuesday, and that a large number surrendered to the Turkish troops.

The official statement follows:

ADMIRAL FENET SHOT HIMSELF AS CRUISER GAMBETTA SANK

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, April 29. — When the French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta was sunk off Otranto, Italy, by an Austrian submarine US with the loss of about 593 members of her crew, including Rear Admiral Fanet, the French cruiser Jules Ferry, a sister ship, was only fifty miles away and picked up the "S. O. S." calls of the sinking ship.

But the Jules Ferry could not go to the aid of the torpedoed cruiser because of the presence of another Austrian submarine, which was engaged in maneuvering to attack her.

This underwater craft chased the Jules Ferry for two hours, trying vainly to launch a torpedo, but was finally driven off by the fire of the cruiser's guns.

The construction at Pola of three submarines, the parts of which had been sent to the Austrian naval base from Germany, has apparently been the signal for the launching of a Teutonic submarine war in the Adriatic Sea and adjacent waters against the French men of war that have been operating there. There, the presence of many Austro-German submarines have been reported by Italian ships during the past three days.

The German Admiralty has evidently insisted upon Austria beginning submarine war in the Austrian naval base of Pola, which Germany has been carrying on in the North Sea.

Dispatches received today from Brindisi, where survivors from the Leon Gambetta were landed, convey details of dramatic and tragic incidents which accompanied the destruction of the French armored cruiser.

Just before the Leon Gambetta took her final plunge, Rear Admiral Feart summoned his staff to the bridge where he addressed them, saying that he would die a sailor's death and would never desert his ship. Then he drew a revolver and shot himself in the temple, his body falling at the feet of his officers.

The members of the crew behaved with marked gallantry throughout the ten minutes that intervened between the time the ship was torpedoed and the moment she sank beneath the waves. Sailors who were aroused from their sleep stood half-dressed at attention and shouted 'Vive la France' as the vessel went down.

The ship's magazine exploded after the vessel was struck and the explosion was of such terrific force that the sound was heard on board ships twenty miles away. The Leon seemed to be raised entirely out of the water and her back was broken in two. Heavy guns were torn from their mountings and hurled high in the air amidst the wreckage from the demolished craft.

Kipling Peeved by Polish Plea

LONDON, April 29.—Because they consider the wording of the appeal for starving Poland, written by Miss Alma-Tadema, co-worker with Ignace Padewrawski, a reflection on the Russian policy and army, Count Alexander Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, Countess Benckendorff and Rudyard Kipling have withdrawn their patronage from the Polish Relief Fund.

Cardinal Bourne, M. Cambon, the French ambassador, Premier Asquith, Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, Chancellor Lloyd George, Father Vaughan, Thomas Hardy and forty other prominent officials and writers remain patrons to the fund, which has reached $25,000.

ZEPPELIN WORKS BADLY DAMAGED

BERLIN, April 29 (By wireless)—A French aviator dropped six bombs on the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen Wednesday, the War Office announced today. Unimportant damage was caused by two of them, but the others had no effect. The aeroplane was fired upon and believed to have been damaged, as it appeared to be in difficulty when it flew eastward.

By HENRY L. PERRY.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

GENEVA, April 29.—Twice attacked within thirty-six hours by French aerial squadrons, the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen have been badly damaged and two of the main buildings there are reported to be in flames.

A dispatch from Bregenze states that damage amounting to fully $1,000,000 has been suffered by the plant, which has been working night and day to turn out airships for a grand attack on England.

Five airships are said to have been destroyed or set on fire by the bombs thrown by the French aviators, who made their first attack Tuesday and their second Wednesday afternoon. They succeeded in flying directly over the plant, though under heavy fire from anti-aircraft guns mounted at several places in Friedrichshafen.

The French aviators on their return flight to Belfort circled over Metz, the great German fortress in Lorraine, dropping bombs and steel arrows. At Hattingen they wrecked the railway station and damaged cars and engines. Several buildings at Lorrach were set on fire.

MOB BRIDE AT DUKE WEDDING

gled with hundreds conspicuous in society.

The double romance was not made public until Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin M. Duke of No. 1078 Fifth avenue, New York, the parents of the bridegroom, issued the following:

"Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary L. Duke, to Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle, Jr., of Philadelphia. No date has been set for the wedding, but it is expected to take place early in the Summer."

CROWD BREAKS THROUGH.

The arrival of the wedding party and guests at the church was uneventful, owing to the careful police arrangements, but as Mr. and Mrs. Duke were preparing to enter a waiting limousine after Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, pastor of Holy Trinity, had pronounced them man and wife, the impatience of the mob broke all restraint.

Defying police batons, the spectators broke through the line of bluecoats and swept down upon the bridegroom's automobile. Just in the nick of time six stalwart traffic patrolmen, who had been guarding the awning in front of the church, leaped into the breach.

Forming a flying wedge around the newly married pair, they lodged them in the automobile safe and unharmed.

Immediately after the reception which followed the wedding Mr. Duke and his young bride left on their wedding tour, which they will make on a private car. They will go to Southern California and in all probability will spend part of their trip at the California Exposition.

DIAMOND CHAIN.

The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and wore two pieces of jewelry, although she hadn't intended to wear any.

One was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, a handsome sapphire ring, surrounded with diamonds, and the other the gift of the bridegroom himself, a diamond chain. The stones were graduated from the clasp to the center and back again, the larger stones being considerably more than a carat in weight. The necklace is valued at $25,000.

More than 1,200 guests attended the wedding, coming from virtually all the large cities of the East, Boston, New York, Baltimore, Washington, and of course Phila city, were represented.

A diamond pin was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel. Mr. Anthony Drexel Biddle, father of the bride, gave her a bank account providing a large annuity; a $50,000 pearl necklace was the gift of Mr. Duke's mother and father, and a handsome diamond bracelet the gift of his cousins and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Duke. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Duke gave their son a mansion in Eighty-ninth street, New York. Altogether more than 500 wedding presents were received.

GERMANS SHIFT FLANDERS ATTACK

By JOHN C. FOSTER,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, April 29.—Halted in their drive against Ypres and positions along the canal the German troops in Flanders have shifted their attack further west, to the front between Dixmude and Nieuport.

Their heavy artillery is bombarding towns held by the Belgians along a front of fifteen miles. Despite the fact that they are undergoing this attack west of Dixmude the Belgian army, co-operating with the French, is continuing its offensive on the Ypres canal. The Belgian legations announced today that King Albert's troops are attacking Steenstrate, the town from which the Germans launched their advance to Lizerne, only to be driven back to the canal.

The Germans are shelling Ramscapelle, Pervyse, Lampernisse and Cortlepeten. They are said to be using several of their seventeen-inch guns in an attempt to blast a way through the Belgian lines.

The following official report from the Belgian Minister of War was issued here today:

"Several points on our front, such as Ramscapelle, Pervyse, Lampernisse and Cootleperen have been repeatedly bombarded. The Belgian artillery has vigorously co-operated with the French in attacks against Steenstraate. Our artillerists have shown great activity."

The French War Office issued the following communique this afternoon:

"In Belgium we continued to progress yesterday in co-operation with the Belgian troops posted the north on the right bank of the Yser canal. We took 159 prisoners and two rapid-fire guns.

"Nothing new has developed on the Meuse heights or in the Vosges. The enemy's aeroplanes bombarded with incendiary bombs the open town of Pierrepont, which entirely escaped medical forces.

"Definite reports state that the Zeppelin which threw bombs a week ago on Dunkirk was greatly damaged by our artillery and completely disabled. It fell in the woods between Bruges and Ghent."

Today's official report from the German general staff at Berlin announces the repulse of all attacks made on the German positions north of Ypres and on the west bank of the Ypres canal, and also states that in the fighting in this region sixty-three cannon have been taken from the allies.

The Berlin report follows:

"All the attacks against German positions on the west bank of the Ypres canal and north of Ypres failed yesterday. The number of cannons captured by the German troops rose to sixty-three.

"Southeast of Verdun the German positions are advanced more than 100 yards. French soldiers taken prisoners confessed tremblingly that they had been told by their officers that the Germans shot all prisoners.

"South of Sochaczew (on the Bzura) the Germans captured a Russian point of support."

ALLIES CAPTURE TURK BATTALION

west of Sed-el-Bahr, has been cleared of the enemy.

"Near Gaba Tepeh the enemy endeavored to maintain his position under cover of fire from his ships. Early Tuesday we stormed the position and forced the enemy back along the whole front, inflicting a severe loss. Part of the enemy, who fled in the direction of the boats, disappeared. Those unable to escape hoisted a white flag and surrendered en masse.

"An enemy transport was sunk off Sari Burun."

This supplementary statement was later issued at the War Office:

"Later reports declare that hostile forces estimated at four brigades have been driven into the sea on the coast at Gaba Tepeh."

BRITISH CLAIM VICTORY OVER TURK TROOPS

LONDON, April 29.—The capture of an entire battalion of Turkish troops on the peninsula of Gallipoli, near the Gulf of Suiva, after a violent battle that lasted all day, is reported in a dispatch received here from Athens.

Both British and French troops participated in this engagement, which was fought on Wednesday.

Suiva gulf lies south of Suiva Burnu on the west coast of the strip of land which forms the northern shore of the Dardanelles. The point where this fight took places is about ten miles north of the position which the allies were reported in official dispatches to have taken up and fortified across the peninsula, two miles from its southern base.

All dispatches indicate that the second great attempt to force the Dardanelles is now in full swing, with the Anglo-French forces attacking by land and by sea.

BOMBARD SMYRNA PORTS.

At the same time extensive operations are reported from the coast of Asia Minor, where three warships penetrated the Gulf of Smyrna on Tuesday and bombarded the Turkish forts defending the city.

Official advices to the Admiralty from Vice Admiral John Michael DeRobeck show that the allies have at last gained a solid foothold upon the peninsula of Gallipoli. The British and their French allies have established a line of positions across the Gallipoli peninsula from a point extending near Eski Hesarlik, where they are supported by about fifty machine guns and many batteries of cannon landed from the fleet.

With the southern tip of the peninsula in the possession of the allies, it is believed that another concentrated bombardment upon the Turkish forts lining the Dardanelles is imminent.

Dispatches from Tenedos indicate that the recent cannonade from the allied fleet has been of a desultory character to enable the mine sweepers to operate and clear the way for the men of war to approach the narrows.

BOMBARD KABA TEPE.

A squadron from the allied fleet has been bombarding the Turkish works at Kaba Tepe, on the Asiatan sea side of the peninsula, to open the way for land operations at that point. A Mitylene dispatch to the Times dated Wednesday says that a cannonade has been heard from the direction of the Dardanelles lasting three hours.

The following dispatch describing the operations at the Dardanelles comes from Athens:

"Details of the first big land engagement fought by the Anglo-French allies and the Turks in the Dardanelles sphere of operations were received here today, and they showed that the British and French had won a clean victory, despite the stubborn resistance of the Turks.

"The fight, which took place on the shores of the gulf of Suiva, resulted in the capture of an entire Turkish battalion by the allies. Besides suffered large losses.

"The battle began at dawn on Wednesday and lasted twelve hours, the Turkish forces retiring under cover of darkness last night.

BAR FLAGS AT PEACE CONGRESS

THE HAGUE, April 29.—The important work of the International Women's Peace Congress was undertaken today when the committee on resolutions held the first of a series of meetings at which resolutions will be drawn up to be sent to all the governments of the civilized world. Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, who was chosen president of the conference yesterday, has received a number of cablegrams of congratulation.

"I am sure we shall accomplish something, but just how much we can do remains to be seen," said Miss Addams. "I find the work of presiding over this great gathering of earnest, serious-minded women a pleasure and an inspiration to higher thoughts and deeds."

The proceedings are being carried on in four languages: Dutch, English, German and French and several interpreters are needed for the deliberations of the committees. A conspicuous feature of the congress is the absence of flags. Although the meeting involves the interests of women of many countries not a flag of any kind is visible.

Most of the American women have already been heard by the convention, among them Mrs. Fannie Andrews and Annie Molloy of Boston and Grace Abbott, Florence Holbrook and Sophonista Breckinridge of Chicago. Pamphlets containing the best speeches against war are being prepared for international circulation.

Says Sun Is Cure for Tuberculosis

BUFFALO, April 29.—Dr. John H. Pryor of Buffalo told the Medical Society of New York that the Rollier sun cure for tuberculosis of bone and glands had proved successful in a large percentage of the cases under observation.

Referring to the treatment to children he said: "The child becomes a barbarian once more. He goes practically naked. One day in February they played unclothed for an hour in the snow."

ESTHER ROSS, who will christen the battleship Arizona.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., April 29.—Esther Ross, a native of Prescott, will christen the battleship Arizona when she is launched at the Brooklyn Navy Yard on June 15. She was selected after Governor Hunt had considered the claims of girls from every part of the State. Miss Ross is seventeen.

Kitchen Girls Their Equals, Vassar Votes

Vassar, Vassar, do not mar 'er,
Kitchen maids have equal rights!
Let's her, pet her, even let her
Join your club and—fight your fights.
—Lay of the Vassar Girl.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Democracy, socialism, equal suffrage and many other things are included in the latest edict of the Students' Association at Vassar.

The young ladies have decided that the kitchen maid or a member of the faculty is as good as the student.

At a meeting the students decided that their organization shall henceforth be known as the "Vassar Association," and shall include the maids and members of the faculty who work in the college.

Mediators Meet Springfield Men

SPRINGFIELD, April 29.—In an effort to avert a strike of the trolleymen employed on the lines of the Springfield Street Railway Company, Commissioners Wood and Rump of the State Board of Arbitration went into conference today with the executive committee of the local union. Unless a satisfactory agreement is reached it is expected a strike will be called at once.

Union leaders state they are determined to hold to their demand that three conductors discharged for alleged irregularities be reinstated unconditionally. The company officials today asserted that they would refuse to yield.

Lynn Messenger's Game Hunt Ends

With a shotgun across his knees and a sandwich in each hand, Rudolph Vallandorp, a Lynn messenger boy, was taken into custody by the police of Station 2 as he sat on the upper deck of the Portland boat waiting for it to sail. The youngster tired of hustling messages, sold his bicycle and came to Boston, bound for the big game of Maine. His father trailed him.

HARVARD TUITION RAISE CONFIRMED

Harvard's tuition fee in the majority of its departments is to be increased from $150 to $200, commencing with the academic year 1915-1917. The Harvard Corporation has just voted in favor of the increased fee, confirming a vote adopted by the University's Board of Overseers early this month.

The following departments will be affected by the increase: The college proper, the graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the Business School, the schools of Architecture and Landscape Architecture and the Bussey Institute with the School of Forestry.

Harvard's alumni and members of the faculty have furiously debated the propriety of increasing the fees during the past few months. Annually Harvard's deficit during the past few years has amounted to from $39,000 to $60,000.

Cochrane Fights Suit on Daughter's Clothes for Debut

Trial on the suit wherein J. Eugene Cochrane of Dedham, polo player and carpet manufacturer, appears as defendant in the case brought by Eva A. Auringer and Mary Doherty Harris, milliners and dressmakers on Boylston street, to recover $1958 alleged owed for hats, gowns and suits furnished without his knowledge to his daughter Eugenie, during the season of 1913-14, in preparation for her coming-out party, was resumed before Chief Justice Aiken in the Superior Court today.

There are sixty items to the bill sued on ranging from eighty-seven cents to $150. The goods were furnished Miss Cochrane, it was testified, when she was a minor, and at her request, on her representing that her father would pay for them.

THAW CHECKED IN LIBERTY MOVE

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court granted an application of the State attorney-general for an alternative writ restraining Supreme Court Justice Hendrick from empanelling a jury to test the sanity of Harry K. Thaw. Argument on the question as to whether the writ should be made permanent will be heard on May 7.

Justice Hendrick, in a recent opinion, decided that he had power to call in a jury to aid him in determining Thaw's sanity, and announced that he would do so. The State authorities, who are fighting to have Thaw returned to the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane, contend that the justice had no such power.

OFFER CUP FOR CLEAN-UP ACTIVITY

A sterling silver cup is offered by the New England Clean Up Campaign Committee to the New England city or town conducting the most efficient and thorough Paint Up and Clean Up campaign during the first week in May.

The community winning this cup will be entitled to hold it the rest of the year. The cup will become the permanent property of the first city or town winning it three times in annual competition. The cup will be engraved with the name of the city or town winning it each year.

The committee on rats and flies of the local Clean Up Campaign Committee will open a bureau of information at No. 304 Boylston street, May 1. The bureau will be maintained until May 8. All interested visitors will be furnished with literature, flyleaflets and samples of exterminators.

Reorganization of Bargain Friday

OVER 100 YEARS IN BUSINESS IN BOSTON

W. & A. BACON CO. WASHINGTON & ESSEX STS.

PHONE ORDERS 2600 Mail and Phone Orders Filled in a Hurry Unless Indicated to the Contrary

Tomorrow should be the greatest Bargain Friday since Bargain Friday was invented. It's the last day of the month and we will make it a Bargain Friday by which April 30, 1915, may always be distinguished.

Several weeks ago we decided to discontinue Friday bargains until we could look into the matter and readjust our advertising and reorganize our merchandising for Friday on a much larger scale than ever before.

Beginning tomorrow we will have on every Friday bargains much stronger than any that have ever before been advertised in Boston.

The public is invited to this great opening of the reorganized Bargain Friday at Bacons'.

The entire shopping public should visit this store.

When you read the bargains that follow this announcement you will understand why.

N. B.—Advertised Friday bargains will be announced on red cards.

ROOSEVELT TAKES RESPONSIBILITY FOR STEEL DEAL

Says He Ratified Tennessee Transaction to Save Country from Panic in 1907.

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
Special Correspondent of I. N. S.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 29.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today took on his shoulders full responsibility for the Tenessee Coal & Iron-Steel Corporation deal of 1907, as he wound up his re-direct examination in the $50,000 libel suit of William Barnes.

But the colonel stood by his guns in his contention that he acted "in a pinch" to save the country.

"The panic stopped," was his parting shot in this connection.

COLONEL APPLAUDED.

Colonel Roosevelt was applauded roundly when he came to court today. the Colonel entered the court-room a few minutes before ten. Already the room was crowded to capacity. Many women were in the crowd.

The Colonel bowed and smiled as he took his seat.

John M. Bowers, the Colonel's chief counsel, began where he left off at yesterday's adjournment when the Colonel took the stand for redirect examination. He called attention to the letters between Platt and Roosevelt of November, 1903, about the appointment of a collector of the port in New York, and asked Roosevelt to explain them.

"I was asked," said Roosevelt, "to reappoint Mr. Bidwell. But in looking over the matter I made up my mind there ought to be a change.

"I named Senator Stranahan. Mr. Platt wanted Bidwell reappointed."

The witness then again asked about the luncheon he arranged for Platt, Benjamin B. Odell and Seth Low.

"Seth Low had been elected Mayor on an independent ticket," he said. "The organization contributed handsomely to his majority. I wanted him to have an understanding with Senator Platt and Governor-elect Odell."

"Mr. Roosevelt," said Bowers, "you may explain why, in your correspondence you referred to Mr. Platt, Mr. Odell and others by their first names?"

EXPLAINING "PLATT'S MAN."

"I called them 'Tom' and 'Ben,' etc," was the answer, "because that was the ordinary terminology by which they were referred to among my friends." "And what did you mean by 'Platt's man,' 'Quigg's man' and so forth?" asked Bowers.

"When Senator Platt or any one else asked me to appoint a man to office I naturally remembered the man, Smith, Jones, or whoever he was, as 'Platt's man.'"

"Why did you lay aside your own interests and finally accept the nomination for Vice-President," asked Bowers.

"I finally took the nomination to gratify President McKinley," declared the Colonel.

The re-direct examination then took up the campaign contributions of 1904.

"Did any Du Pont contribute to the fund?" was asked. "Yes."

"Was there any action during your term as President against the Du Pont Powder Company?"

"There was," said the Colonel. "The action was begun in 1907."

"Was there any action during your administration against the Steel Corporation?"

"There was," answered the Colonel.

SUSTAINING OBJECTIONS.

"Just before I left the White House an action was begun by the Attorney-General against the Steel Corporation under the Sherman law. It was not finished when my term expired."

Mr. Bowers asked similar questions about the Union Pacific and Standard Oil.

Justice Andrews sustained objections on Mr. Ivins' contention that the cross-examination did not mention either corporation. Bowers then took up the Steel Corporation-Tennessee Coal & Iron deal.

"You may explain that if you wish," he told his client.

"In 1907," began the Colonel, "the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company was so weak as not to be considered serious as a competitor by the Steel Corporation. Its output was only one and nine-tenths per cent. of the entire output of the country.

"The whole commercial structure of the country was tottering and swaying, every citizen was demanding some action be taken to stop the panic that threatened the country.

"I had been appealed to by thousands of citizens to take some measure to prevent the frightful panic.

"In New York the situation was, I may say, trembling on a hair as to whether all business would be stopped and all institutions shut down.

CALLED IN ROOT.

"I received word one night that early the next morning two representatives of the Steel Corporation, Mr. Frick and Judge Gary, would call on me.

"I notified the Attorney-General to meet them, but he was in Baltimore. I then asked Elihu Root, an astute lawyer, to meet them with me.

"Mr. Frick and Judge Gary reported to me that if the Steel Corporation—Mr. Morgan's company—took possession at once of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, it would add such value to the T. C. & I. stock that they were sure the storm would be weathered and the panic stopped. This, they said, was the general sentiment.

"On the advice of the Attorney-General and Mr. Root, and on the statement by Frick and Gary that they did not want the T. C. & I. stock, but knew it to be the only way to stop the panic, I ratified the deal. They said it was the only way of getting rid of the dangerous financial situation."

—From Colonel Roosevelt's Testimony at Syracuse.

WHY ROOSEVELT APPROVED TENNESSEE COAL & IRON DEAL

"Mr. Frick and Judge Gary reported to me that if the Steel Corporation—Mr. Morgan's company—took possession at once of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, it would add such value to the T. C. & I. stock that they were sure the storm would be weathered and the panic stopped. This, they said, was the general sentiment.

"On the advice of the Attorney-General and Mr. Root, and on the statement by Frick and Gary that they did not want the T. C. & I. stock, but knew it to be the only way to stop the panic, I ratified the deal. They said it was the only way of getting rid of the dangerous financial situation."

—From Colonel Roosevelt's Testimony at Syracuse.

never any particle of invisible government," he declared at one point.

"Since I became Governor in 1899, I have made 50,000 speeches; signed appropriation bills for several billions of dollars, made forty thousand appointments and written 50,000 letters."

"Did you always consult Senator Platt for the good of the organization?" asked Bowers.

"I did."

"Did you ever disregard his advice?"

"I did many times."

RELIEVED STATEMENTS.

"Did you believe the truth of the statements you made about Barnes?" Mr. Bowers asked.

"I did," replied the colonel.

Mr. Bowers then re-read the speech on about the Barnes-Murphy combination read yesterday by Mr. Ivins.

"Did you say those things?" asked Bowers.

"Did you say those things" asked Bowers.

"Did you believe it?"

"I certainly did."

The court sustained objections to the colonel telling of alleged collateral facts on which he based his speeches about Barnes and Murphy uniting to control the State.

"The colonel was also not allowed to tell of the State convention of 1898, when he was nominated for Governor and the speech then by Root concerning the constitutional question of Roosevelt being a resident of New York.

Bowers reverted to the speeches of 1914 after the alleged libelous article of July 22, that year. Barnum objected.

Girl Overcome at Cowl Funeral

NEW YORK, April 29.—Miss Emily Wheeler, though overcome with grief during the funeral services over the body of her fiancee, Arthur Hearn Cowl, today in the library of the Cowl home, "Elinore," at Great Neck, L. I., went with her parents afterward to the Hearn-Cowl mausoleum in Woodlawn cemetery to see the body placed in its last resting place.

Miss Wheeler, with her parents, arrived at the Great Neck house late last night. She returned to her home in Stratford, where young Cowl killed himself three days ago, immediately after leaving Woodlawn.

The funeral services were simple. Though Miss Wheeler bore up remarkably well during the earlier part of the services, she was overcome shortly before the ceremony ending and was forced to leave the room.

Appeals from Auto Liquor Fine of $25

Stanley W. Longmire, a wealthy resident, was fined $25 today in the Newton Court on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He appealed and was held in $100. Patrolmen McNeil and Connolly testified that they arrested Longmire at Newton Lower Falls, Tuesday night after his automobile had narrowly missed colliding with an automobile in which were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Borst of Brookline.

NO MATTER

what kind of an automobile you are looking for, the chances are ten to one that you will find it listed in the "Used Car" columns of the Boston American.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While not dyed, gray, faded hair is not sinful, so all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

Forty Persons Flee South End Blaze

Forty occupants of the dwelling house at No. 47 Hudson street, South End, fled from their apartment early today when a fire started from an unknown cause in the basement, which is occupied as a grocery by John E. Michael. The blaze was discovered by John Debar of No. 45 Hudson street, who ran through the building, warning the occupants.

TOURS CONTEST ENDS FIRST LAP

The first lap in the AMERICAN'S California Tours Contest is over, exactly one-third of the contest time having elapsed with the publication of yesterday's vote coupon.

The quickness with which the time has slipped by must be a revelation to some of the candidates who, perhaps, thought the contest was a rather long one.

The remaining two-thirds of the competition will slip by even more quickly.

So, candidates, get on your fighting togs and round up the all-important vote coupons and provide yourself now with a seat on the AMERICAN'S de luxe train to the Pacific Coast and the marvelous expositions awaiting there.

HEALTH PLACED ABOVE POLITICS

At a conference of State and local health authorities in Ford Hall today Governor Walsh gave warning in his address of welcome that politics and party lines have no place in this branch of municipal service.

He said a good word for Dr. Alan J. McLaughlin, the State Health Commissioner, and the Public Health Council, which have succeeded the State Board of Health.

The Governor made an eloquent plea for the babies and for reduction of infant mortality. He is a bachelor executive, but he couldn't have been more earnest over the baby question if he were a family man, with a nursery full of "kiddies." He said in part:

"To illustrate the field which is still before us to be explored and the progress which we may still hope by faithful efforts to attain, permit me to call to your attention a few facts gathered from the death records of the year 1913. A fact which stands out in startling prominence is that of the 33,256 deaths which occurred in that year, no less than 13,461 were of children under five years of age.

MUCH WORK TO BE DONE.

"While we do not forget that infant mortality has been greatly reduced by the progress of sanitary science in recent years, is it not evidenced that this proportion is frightfully high and that we should lend every effort for a still greater reduction of this terrible infant mortality? Education of mothers in matters pertaining to infant hygiene is evidently one need of the hour which is of more importance from the health standpoint than any other. I trust that the enthusiasm generated in this meeting may reach out into the entire Commonwealth and may be reflected in the health and happiness of many a household.

"I am especially glad of the opportunity which this gathering affords of bringing the workers for public health throughout the Commonwealth into closer contact with our State health department, of which in its present condition the Commonwealth may well be proud. To be in the highest degree successful the ablest department of health must have the earnest co-operation and good will of the local officers and boards of health. I commend to you most heartily Dr. McLaughlin, the commissioner, his eminent public health council, and all all their coworkers and subordinates.

NO ROOM FOR POLITICS.

"This is a field in which party lines have no place, political distinctions may be forgotten and all may work heartily together for a common end."

The conference is a joint one of the State Health Department and the Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health, so representatives from every municipality in the State were invited.

State Health Commissioner McLaughlin presided at the morning session, which began at 10:30. The schedule of morning speakers included, beside Governor Walsh, President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, Professor Irving W. Fisher of Yale, President William T. Sedgwick of the American Public Health Association, and Miss Ella P. Crandall, executive secretary of the National Association for Health Nursing.

Switzerland in America Glacier National Park

Now that Switzerland is closed to the Tourist World, Glacier National Park in northwestern Montana becomes the Mecca of those who love the rugged mountain scenery and outdoor life.

It is easy to reach Glazier Park for the luxurious "Oriental Limited" train over the Burlington Route (C. B. & Q. R. R.) from Chicago takes one through to the very gates without change.

Within the Park comfortable quarters are to be had at Glacier Park Hotel and elsewhere; and the glaciers, the lofty mountains, the crystal lakes filled with gamey trout; the atmosphere of Montana ruling everywhere, are never to be forgotten.

Those in charge of Glacier Park have seen to it that the cost of visiting and living there is not expensive, and I would like to send you some of our illustrated booklets which tell you all about it, and also tell you the cost of going and getting around there.

If you will give me your address, I will gladly send you some free of charge, and answer any questions about the Park that you may wish to ask.

How You Can Quickly Remove Hairy Growths

(Aids to Beauty)

A well known beauty specialist advises this treatment for the removal of hair from the face. Mix into a paste some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This method is quick and entirely safe. To avoid disappointment, however, it is well to make certain you get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

BROMFIELD ST. MEN ORGANIZE

The business men of Bromfield street have organized themselves into an association, the purpose of which is not only to make Bromfield street a better, brighter and busier street, but the movement has been started to transform more of the well-known shops there so as to make it a still greater pleasure for shoppers to trade there, as well as a source of delight for visitors and passers-by to merely walk through the thoroughfare and view the window displays.

Twenty of the leading business men of the street have met at intervals and formed what is now called organized as the Bromfield Street Merchants' Association.

Henry Penn has been elected president, G. J. Keeler, vice-president, and R. F. Fuller, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors is made up of T. Roberts, Jr., J. B. Thayer, Fred Berry and J. Hirst.

The association idea was suggested to several of the Bromfield merchants by A. Lincoln Filene and its plan is now being submitted to the occupants of every building on the street with the aim of making Bromfield street one of the best in Boston. The plan expects to bring the total membership up to more than 100 live business men.

Bromfield street is already one of the most frequented shopping thoroughfares in the city, having many diversified lines of high-class business in its short length, and the various plans under consideration to make the stores more uniformly attractive will be watched with interest, not only by the public but also by merchants in other localities.

Employes Plan to Give a May Party

The annual May party of the Macullane Houston Company Co-operative Association will this year take the form of a costume dance and whist and is announced for Tuesday evening, May 4, at Catholic Union Hall. Prizes will be awarded to those wearing the most unique costumes on the promenade and to the winners at whist.

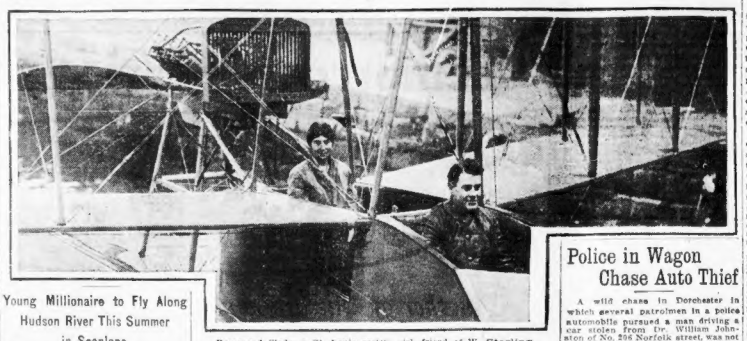
Winchester's Orchestra has been engaged. Whist will begin at 8 p. m. and dancing will continue until 1 a. m.

Mrs. Lange Wins Divorce Decree

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Mrs. Grace Lange has been awarded a decree of divorce from "Billy" Lange, famous Cub outfielder of fifteen years ago. The ex-diamond star went to fashionable clubs and dansants without her, the wife testified.

Vincent Astor Tells of Plans for Airship Flights

To Make First Aerial Trip at Marblehead Tomorrow



Rosamond Slade, a St. Louis society girl, friend of W. Starling Burgess, aeroplane builder, and Aviator Clifford Webster in Vincent Astor's new hydroaeroplane at Marblehead.

Young Millionaire to Fly Along Hudson River This Summer in Seaplane.

Owing to the condition of the weather Vincent Astor, who is here supervising the construction of his new flying-machine at the Burgess plant at Marblehead, and incidentally learning the art of aviation, made no flight today.

With Miss Rosamond Slade, a St. Louis society girl, and Clifford Webster, who will teach young Astor, he spent the morning inspecting his new machine, now near completion.

"I undoubtedly will try out my new machine tomorrow," said young Astor. "I have looked over the craft and I am satisfied that all my suggested changes will be completed by morning.

"I think the machine will be in perfect condition for my first flight.

"I believe I can master this aviation game in ten or twelve lessons. After I have learned the art I will go to Rhinebeck, N. Y. I will take the machine with me.

"I expect to make several flights in it along the Hudson river this summer."

SUSPENSION OF GIRLS CAUSES STIR AT WELLESLEY COLLEGE

sation at the college, because of the reports which connect the punishment with the Cavalry Club. This club is in Worcester street, Natick. It is a large farm maintained by the members of the four troops of State cavalry, who are not furnished with State mounts. Here the officers and their troopers get some practice in the use and care of horses.

To help defray the expense of maintaining this private equipment of horses, supplies and the like, the club lets out horses to anyone who wishes to hire. The Wellesley girls have been among the best customers. As far as is known, the college authorities have made no objection to the students taking advantage of the opportunity for horseback riding. It is generally understood that many Wellesley girls have hired mounts at the club.

Captain Dana T. Gallup, prominent among the militia officers at the club, said today that he knew the members of the club had been especially careful not to violate any rules of the college. He also admitted that he had heard that three of the girls who had ridden at the club were to be suspended. The charges against them, however, he claimed, had no connection with the Cavalry Club.

While three students he understood were suspended, Captain Gallup refused to say. It is known, however, that the girls are all juniors and that the offence with which they are charged was sufficient to warrant their suspension for the rest of this year and for half of the next college year.

ONE GIRL FROM NEW ENGLAND.

None of the three has been identified with any college society or with any athletic team on the college. It was also intimated that their families have had to make some sacrifices to send them to college. It was for the sake of the families, it was claimed at the college, that the authorities decided to withhold the names of the girls.

One of the girls is said to live not far from Boston. The other two live outside New England, one of them in the West. The rules they are accused of breaking are those established by the organization of students, which undertakes the control and discipline of the girls.

It is customary, when violations of the rules of this student organization come to the attention of college officials, to refer the matter to the students for investigation and for discipline. The recommendations of the council of students in them usually followed by the college authorities.

Police in Wagon Chase Auto Thief

A wild chase in Dorchester in which several patrolmen in a police automobile pursued a man driving a car stolen from Dr. William Johnston of No. 206 Norfolk street, was not ended when the doctor's automobile smashed into a fence, for the man operating it fled on foot for nearly half a mile, pursued by police and citizens, and escaped.

The theft was the second suffered by Dr. Johnston within a week.

NARROW ESCAPES IN ELEVATORS

Remarkable escapes from serious injury in two elevator accidents were included in today's police reports. A crowded elevator in the City Hall Annex dropped suddenly, but was fortunately checked by safety appliances after a ten-foot plunge. At No. 75 Endicott street Abraham Schneider, a seven-year-old boy, was extricated from between a wall and a passenger elevator with only minor injuries.

In the Annex the steel cage dropped just before reaching the second floor in its descent with twenty-two passengers, many of them women. The drop was checked by safety catches, which also locked the cage in its guides, trapping the frightened twenty-two. They were finally rescued through a trap door exit in the cage and assisted to the second floor by means of a long stepladder.

The Schneider boy is believed to have been playing near the elevator in Endicott street. In some way he became entangled, gripped by the floor of the elevator between the cage and the wall. His cries were heard by Patrolman Kerrigan and members of Ladder Company No. 2. At the Relief Hospital it was discovered that he had received only contusions to the abdomen and the back.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dangerous affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very effective.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by local action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.

Plumpness Makes Health

This People Need This.

If you are too thin, if you are pale and sallow; if what you eat seems not to strengthen you; if your face and cheeks are colorless, it is because your blood is deficient in red corpuscles and disease can easily overcome you, as you have no reserve strength or nourishment to uphold you.

A pharmaceutical product, called 3 grain hypocuriana tablets, is much prescribed for these conditions, and if taken for several months, rapidly increases weight and improves the color. Buy in sealed package at any well stocked apothecary store. Advertisement.

DUDLEY STREET "L" DENOUNCED

Petitioning for better transportation facilities at Dudley street station, Roxbury citizens and members of the Roxbury Board of Trade today condemned the existing conditions in which, they said, "men, women and children are sorts dover like cattle."

Henry Crine, a seventy-nine-year-old retired merchant, declared that the Public Service Commission that the failure of the Elevated to provide proper facilities had driven business out of Roxbury and the South End district and had caused a loss of taxes to the city of $500,000 a year.

"Stores near Dudley street, once prosperous, are now devoid of business," Mr. Crine said, "all because of improper transportation. Trade has been taken away from Roxbury and the people who live in the district are deprived of proper car accommodations."

Secretary Ernest R. Buffinton of the Board of Trade recommended to the commission that the inbound cars from Forest Hills, Jamaica Plain, Ashmont and Milton and the other suburbs be run through Washington street and down through the South End district instead of coming to a dead stop in the upper level at Dudley street or making the "dead-man's curves" of the lower level. He also recommended transfer privileges which would permit passengers to change cars. "In the confusion of the present system," he said, "women, children and old people have to climb upstairs and down and be sorted over like cattle."

President Edmund J. Martin of the South End Board of Trade also indorsed the recommended changes. Attorney L. A. Ford, representing the Elevated, said the changes would be impossible from a practical railroad standpoint.

Wellesley Girl Editors to Be Lampoon Guests

"Lampy" of Harvard will be "at home" Monday to the girl editors of Wellesley College.

Five journalistic Wellesley maids, headed by Miriam Vedder, editor-in-chief of the Wellesley College News, will visit the Lampoon plant in the afternoon.

Under guidance of Robert C. Bacon of the Lampoon board the girl editors will be shown about the building and ideas of college newspaper work were exchanged.

It is presumed that the girl editors will return "Lampy's" hospitality at an early date.

Houghton Testifies in the Tanzer Case

NEW YORK, April 29.—U. S. Commissioner C. S. Houghton was a witness for the government today at the perjury trial of Franklin D. Stafford, one of the figures in the Osborne-Rice Tanzer case. Miss Tanzer, whose breach of promise suit against former Assistant District Attorney James W. Osborne was withdrawn, appeared as a witness for the defence. It was Stafford who identified Mr. Osborne as "Oliver Osborne," the sweetheart of Miss Tanzer.

Benson Named for Big U. S. Naval Post

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Daniels announced the appointment of Captain William S. Benson to the newly created post of chief of operations of the navy. Captain Benson now is commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard. He will take up his work next Saturday, with the rank of rear admiral, while on the same day, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, whose office as aide for operations is absorbed in the new post, will begin his duties on the staff of the Naval War College at Newport.

Freshman Rout the Sophomores at Wellesley

The Wellesley freshmen have had revenge on the sophomores, part of said revenge consisting of draping sophomore furbelows and lingerie from fire escapes and other unaccustomed places.

Tree Day is the freshman's day of glory. The plans for its celebration are kept secret. By secret service work the sophomores got hold of the fact that these Tree Day secrets were kept in Noanett House. Three of the most valiant repaired to that domicile. In the reception room one lone little freshman saw the invasion. She gave the alarm and freshmen returned in force.

Deep in their search for secrets, the sophomores were at the top of the house. With a cheer the freshmen were upon them, surrounded them with sheets, quilts and whatever was handy, and forthwith they deposited the intruders on Washington street.

It is reported the eviction was not accomplished without a strong defence on the part of the sophomores, and that several of the belligerents were unable to attend their classes the following day.

Barbados Penny Post Announced

Under an order issued pursuant to instructions from Washington, postage on letters to the British colonies of Barbados and the Leeward Islands has been reduced from five cents an ounce to two cents an ounce, by agreement with the colonial governments. Under an agreement between the Postoffice Departments of the two countries, liquids, oils, pastes and other articles easily liquifiable, hereafter will be received for transmission by parcel post between the United States and Norway.

WEDDING AFTER DOUBLE DIVORCE

Society is interested in the marriage of Mrs. Frances Hazen Woolson of Brookline and Walter Woolson Brown, a wealthy manufacturer, of Springfield, Vt., which took place at the home of the bride at the Stonholm, No. 1514 Beacon street, Brookline, Tuesday afternoon. The marriage has just become known through the filing of the marriage license at the office of the Brookline town clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left on a wedding journey. They will return to make their home in Brookline until June, when they will take up their residence in Springfield, Vt.

They were married by the Rev. Allan Conant Ferrin of Lowell. Mrs. Brown, according to a copy of a decree filed with the license, was divorced from William D. Woolson, December 12, 1911. Mrs. Brown, who was the libellant, charged Woolson with intolerable severity and was granted the divorce by the Windsor County court of Vermont. She has three children, Miss Ruth Woolson, a student at Radcliffe last year, and two sons, Eric and Robert Woolson, both students at a Connecticut college.

Brown, who is forty-two years old, according to a copy of a decree which was filed, was divorced by his first wife, who was Mrs. Pauline Brown, on July 20, 1911, at Reno, Nevada. She alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, according to the copy of the decree.

Bay State Plans $1,500,000 New Stock

The Bay State Street Railway Company today petitioned the Public Service Commission for authority to issue $1,500,000 of preferred stock. The money thus derived would be used principally as follows: Track construction, $371,999.44; new rolling stock, $142,822.29; power stations and machinery, $130,577.38.

MILITARY HONORS AT DOLAN FUNERAL

Captain Walter H. Dolan of the Boston Latin School Cadets, who died Tuesday following an operation at the Carney Hospital, was given a military funeral by his schoolmates today.

The boys of Company D, of which young Dolan was captain, in command of Lieutenant Raul Yessner, marched at the head of the hearse from the Dolan home, No. 715 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, to St. Thomas' Church, where there was a high mass of requiem.

Rev. Mark Madden was celebrant of the mass, the Rev. James P. Sperry, deacon, and the Rev. Timothy J. Donovan, subdeacon. Frederick Moran of Boston College, a chum of young Dolan, was master of ceremonies.

The ushers were: John Rooney, Thomas Rooney and Arthur O'Keefe. As the coffin was taken from the church the altar boys formed a double row in the isle and stood at attention. Company D of the High School Cadets preceded the coffin, and later marched at the head of the hearse to Forest Hills Square, where the members formed lines on each side, through which the hearse passed.

The pall bearers were Colonel John J. O'Leary of the Boston Latin School Cadets, Robert A. Young, Arthur P. Fay, Cutter P. Davis, Paul O. Powers, James L. Dwyer and J. Kenneth Gedkin.

Burial was in Old Calvary Cemetery. Commitment prayers were read by the Rev. Mark Madden.

Bird to Give His Decision Next Monday

Charles Sumner Bird, the Walpole manufacturer and philanthropist, who two years ago lifted the Bull Moose party into second place in Massachusetts, will announce on Monday whether he will be a candidate for Governor in the Fall.

Mr. Bird has been invited by former Governor Foss to throw his hat into the ring. "I am considering Mr. Foss' letter," said Mr. Bird today, "but owing to the press of business have not had time to make reply to him. I shall reply to him by letter Monday. Meanwhile I am considering whether I shall be a candidate for Governor."

The fact that Mr. Bird is "considering" the matter is taken as an indication that he may become a candidate. Mr. Foss is also said to be considering whether he would like another cup of tea.

TRIUMPHAL TOUR PLANNED FOR BELL

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The triumphal procession of Old Liberty Bell to the Panama-Pacific Exposition is being planned along lines that will bring the widely-separated sections closer together than any previous event recorded in history.

The committee of thirteen, each member of which will represent one of the nucleus of colonies into which the present world power, the United States, has developed in a little more than a century, is assured. Great care is also being exercised by the Philadelphia authorities in the selection of the official escort in order that it may be thoroughly representative.

William Randolph Hearst's original request to the Philadelphia Council which met with prompt and favorable response is declared to have afforded the inspiration to make it a "hands across the country" movement. This message in part said:

MESSAGE OF UNITY.

What could do more to unite the spirit of the East and the West than to bring the bell to the Pacific Coast at a time when we are celebrating the country's greatest and largest achievement.

What could arouse more appreciation of the fact that what one section of the country accomplishes eventually benefits every other section whether the accomplishment be a political or a material one.

There is always a great deal of sentimental association with the Liberty Bell, but the present conditions abroad and in Mexico and throughout the world, the transit of the bell across the continent would arouse the greatest enthusiasm and patriotism.

In times of disturbance and danger nothing is more necessary than for the country to feel a sense of unity.

Acting upon this suggestion, Mayor Blankenburg has directed the route selected to be one which will afford the greatest number of persons to have their first opportunity of seeing the nation's most sacred symbol of independence and democracy. He has suggested, if a northern route be chosen that stops be made at Omaha, Kansas City, Lincoln, Denver, Cheyenne, Ogden, Spokane, and thence across the Cascades to Seattle and Portland.

The suggestion to make a swing up through the Northwest from Ogden came after the Los Angeles Council invited the committee to stop for a three-days' celebration on the return trip.

TELL HISTORY OF BELL.

The danger of encountering high temperatures over a Southern route will also be a factor in the ultimate selection of the route.

Thousands of pamphlets illustrated with cuts of Liberty Bill and Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, which is known as the Cradle of Liberty, with historical data relating the intimate connection of the bell with the birth of independence are being prepared for distribution. Speeches will also be made at every stop by members of the committee explaining the purpose of this patriotic pilgrimage.

Pilgrims Guests of Springfield Ad Men

SPRINGFIELD, April 29.—Several members of the Pilgrim Publicity Association were the guests at the sixth annual banquet of the Publicity Club held at the Kimball Hotel. The Boston men gave a minstrel show. Carroll Swan acted as interlocutor. Selections were given by the Boston Quintet, consisting of Walter E. Anderson, Arthur K. Hackett, Robert Nichols, Dr. Arthur R. Gould and Augustus H. Beatey.

$653,000,000 in U. S. Exports for Year

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Exports from the United States to all other American countries in the fiscal year 1914, totalled $653,000,000, of which $528,500,000 went to North America and $124,500,000 to South American countries. These facts are set forth in a new book on "Trade of the United States with other American countries" just published by the department of commerce. Canada is the best customer of the United States, buying more than all the other American nations combined. Cuba is second.

URGES WOMEN TO HELP EACH OTHER

"Investigation of women's work has been going on for eighty years and now we know enough to take action. There must be no more shirtwaist factory fires where girls are locked in; there must be a general raise in wages, so that the lowest will at least allow women and girls to survive honestly," declared Mrs. Raymond Robbins, president of the National Women's Trades Union League, speaking at the local branch of the organization at No. 919 Washington street.

Mrs. Robbins, a wealthy Chicago woman, is here to urge delegates to attend the biennial session of the national organization in New York in June. She represents 100,000 working girls in the United States.

Mrs. Robbins told how women's votes in Chicago defeated Herbert Killen for alderman.

"We went out after him," Mrs. Robbins declared, "and carried signs on our hand wagons saying that a vote for Killen meant a vote against the eight-hour day for women. I heard of one city father in Chicago who had never been known to show much gallantry, carrying a basket of clothes for a washerwoman a block or more—she had a vote and he needed it."

Bravery of Norwood Officer Recognized

Special Police Officer James H. Corbett of Norwood, who captured, single-handed, three men, one of whom was armed with a loaded revolver, while they were trying to break into Winslow railroad station in Norwood, last week, has been made a regular officer by the selectmen of Norwood, under the civil service. Patrolman Corbett has served as special officer thirteen years, and for the past six months has been doing regular patrol duty. He passed the civil service examination some time ago.

Fined for Row Over 'Birth of Nation'

As a result of hearings of negro men and women arrested outside the Tremont Theatre on Saturday night, April 17, during a demonstration against the film "The Birth of a Nation," Fred Banks was found guilty of profanity, but Justice Brackett placed his case on file. On the same offence James L. Dunn, said to be a trustee of a church in Newton, was found guilty and fined $2. Charles P. Ray, for throwing an egg at the screen while in the theatre, pleaded guilty. Upon agreeing to reimburse the theatre $20 for damages he was placed on probation. Other cases were to come up today.

Railway Workmen Object to Nagel

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Judge Martin H. Knapp, chairman of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation now handling the western railway wage dispute, conferred with President Wilson regarding a protest which leaders of the railway employes have made against Charles Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor and a member of the arbitration board. Their protest is based on the fact that Mr. Nagel is a trustee of the Busch estate of St. Louis, which is said to be a large holder of railway securities.

TO RECOVER BODY OF CHAMPOLLION

Friends, including many Harvard men, of Andre C. Champollion, the Newport, N. H., artist, and Harvard graduate, who went to his death while fighting in the French trenches, are trying to have his body recovered and brought to this country for burial. Champollion was shot in the forehead in an action at Bois-le-Petre, France, on March 12.

The dead soldier was graduated from Harvard in 1902. The campaign to recover his body is being made through the Harvard Club of Paris. James Hazen Hyde, one of the most influential members of the Paris organization, is giving personal attention to the matter.

A memorial service for Champollion probably will be held in Appleton Chapel, Harvard "Yard." No date has been mentioned yet. If the body should be recovered soon and arrangements could be made to have it shipped to this country soon, the memorial service might be deferred until the body arrived.

Andre C. Champollion was a grandson of Jean Francois Champollion, the French Egyptologist, who deciphered the Rosetta stone and thus added volumes to ancient history.

In 1909 Andre married Adelaide, youngest daughter of the late John J. Knox, Controller of the Currency. Champollion was an artist and lover of peace. He believed that realistic pictures of war and its horrors, like those Verestchagin painted, would further the peace cause.

This belief, and his inherited love for France, led to his enlistment and the sacrifice of his life. He leaves his young widow and a boy, Rene, five years old.

E. H. S. '12 Gives Cup to Headmaster Casey

Members of the class of '12 of the English High School expressed decided resentment at the forced retirement of Headmaster John F. Casey, and criticised the School Board for retiring him, at their fourth annual dinner in the Hotel Lenox. Headmaster Casey was present as the guest of honor, and was presented with a handsome loving cup.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Sarah M. Atwood, former wife of Harry N. Atwood, Swampscott aviator, and Dr. Frank E. Stone, former city physician of Lynn. Mrs. Atwood, before her marriage, was Miss Sarah M. Jenkins of Lynn. She was teller for the Lynn Institution of Savings. She is now employed at the Lynn Gas and Electric Company's office. She has a daughter, Bethany. In 1912 Mrs. Atwood went to Reno, Nevada, where she was divorced.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

In line with the trend in the motor car industry, manufacturers of rear axles of the internal gear type and manufacturers of commercial cars using the internal gear drive have formed an organization to be known as the Internal Gear Drive Association. Headquarters have been opened in the David Whitney Building, Detroit.

"Stock in the Stutz racing team entered for the next Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes has jumped way above par, as the result of a speed trial staged ex the Hoosier track with one of the new Stutz 500-inch fliers," says P. M. Chase of the local Stutz Company.

Driving under wraps, Wilcox negotiated a full lap of the course in 1:36 2-5, or better than ninety-three miles an hour. On the straightaways he hit in the neighborhood of 105. Shortly after, Anderson took the wheel and reeled off fifty miles in 24:27, or 87.1 miles an hour.

CARRANZA MAY WIN RECOGNITION

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Reports that the United States soon would extend provisional recognition to General Carranza as head of a de facto government in Mexico were renewed here today. No one connected with the administration will admit that a change of policy is contemplated by the Washington government, but diplomats believe such a move may be looked for in the near future.

This belief was strengthened by reports from the border indicating that General Carranza expects an announcement of this character to be made at Washington within a few weeks.

Unofficial advices, which came from Carranza sources at Vera Cruz, say that it has been suggested to the first chief that if he would agree to the selection of a provisional president by the military chiefs of the revolution and appoint a complete cabinet as provided by the Mexican constitution this government would be disposed to extend provisional recognition.

Rescue Two From Wrecked Airship

Captain Henry Bernstein of England and Aviator Frank C. Coffyn were rescued and narrowly escaped serious injury, when a Burgess aeroplane which they were testing dropped into Boston Harbor, near Lawley's shipyard.

Coffyn hoped to make a landing on the old aviation field at Squantum, but the distance was misjudged and the hydroplane settled not far from the channel in almost the spot where Miss Harriet Quimby and Manger Willard were killed by a fall from their aeroplane in July, 1912. A boat went to the rescue.

Seeks Removal of Macleod and White

Removal from office of Chairman Frederick J. Macleod and Chester White of the Public Service Commission is asked by George N. Nichols of Lynn in a petition before the Governor and Council. The petition recites that for years, as members of the Railroad Commission, Messrs. Macleod and White have knowledge of violations of the law by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, but did nothing to prevent the continuance of such practices.

Curley and Walsh Laud Boston Y.M.C.U.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Union and the great work which it is carrying on were praised in the highest terms by Governor Walsh and Mayor Curley at the annual banquet of the union, held in the Boston City Club. Governor Walsh declared that he conceived it to be the duty of a Governor to lend the support of his office to every great movement in the community which held as its highest motive the good of humanity, and that he knew of none which was doing more for Massachusetts than the union.

Women Seek to Become Eligible in Political Work

Women canvassers for suffrage, who recently learned by a ruling of the Attorney-General that they were not eligible to serve as political canvassers before the Rules Committee in favor of a bill to amend the law.

Mrs. Teresa Crowley, for the several suffrage societies, said that her organizations had been for fifty years educating the people, and she did not believe that the corrupt practices act was drawn up with the intent of stopping this work.

Sincerity Best Asset for Stage

Miss Julia Dean Declares It Is an Indispensable Quality to Success

"It is a little difficult to say just what quality it is above all others that makes for success on the stage. I am not quite sure there is any one, but if I am brought to bay and obliged to give a direct answer, I should say—SINCERITY—with capital letters.".

Miss Dean was talking between the acts of "The Law of the Land," in which she is the leading player, at the Majestic Theatre, and she manifested a thoroughly ground belief in her assertion which left one feeling convinced.

Miss Dean has a charming personality which is bound to put its stamp of magnetism upon any role in which she appears. There seems to be non ething there uppermost that the emotional roles she has assumed have not drawn upon because not required, and the sincerity of her acting always has so dominated any part she ever assumed that one could only feel that she would be a living answer to the question: "What makes for success on the stage?"

It has been asked and answered so many times. Some actresses have ventured personality; hundreds of them have declared it was beauty that counted most. Miss Laurette Taylor thinks it is imagination. Mme. Doraat thinks that a creative instinct is the most important element in the making of an actress, and now comes Miss Dean's idea that it is sincerity.

"After all," she said, "what do all the other qualifications count for if there isn't sincerity also. It is needed in any profession or vocation, but particularly in this one of the stage.

"In any other line of work you may perhaps perform your duties even though you are only half interested, but in acting, the least you can do is be sincere to yourself. I do not say that being sincere may be simple and still not succeed. He may not be able to make an audience feel his sincerity. What I do say, understand me, is that without sincerity and singleness of purpose he has no chance.

"Apropos of emotional roles, some of my critics doubt the wisdom of my attempting them, because I am not a beauty, but what would you? In how many cases does a display of emotion, of grief, add anything to good looks? I have made a study of that point in real life and I give you my word that the most attractive face in repose becomes either ugly or ridiculous when grief. It's an interesting point, don't you think? But I do not want to play emotional roles exclusively. Variety, I believe, is the saving grace in this profession. In the first place, versatility is a strong test of an actor's ability, and in the second, a change of role is necessary to keep the faculties awake and alert and the nerves in condition. It is monotony that kills."

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

Crawley Makes Frantic Efforts to Buy Back the Painting of "Circe"

(Copyright, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. Special rights in U. S. A. held by International News Service.)

(BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.)

MEMORIES of this kind crowded in upon Noel Crawley's dazed and over-excited brain, and one question kept hammering instantly for answer: "What would Brooke do if he knew?"

And then he realised, with a still more poignant horror at the unnamable position in which through his own folly and a scurry trick of fate he found himself placed, that that was not really the paramount fear. It was not the fear of consequences. Were Brooke to know—why he should only want Brooke or anyone else to kill him. Such a fate would be too good, and life under such circumstances would be utterly intolerable.

No, Brooke might arise in primitive wrath and slay the false wife and the false friend, and then turn his face toward hell. Crawley, with his artist's soul and highly strung temperament, saw the whole drama. It was fitting and inevitable, and he did not flinch. Once the truth were out life would be impossible. Already in his mind he forgave Brooke for the uncommitted murder.

No. It was not that. It was rather the intolerable thought of the effect such a discovery would have on Brooke himself—his friend, his benefactor and patron, the man to whom he attributed his present position in the world—for Crawley was not so egotistical as to fail to realize that, despite his genius, he could hardly have been recognized as yet had it not been that the great empire maker had never forgotten his friend of bohemian days in the Quartier Latin and had never lost an opportunity—and there had been many—of diplomatically booming him. The result had been—Noel Crawley of 40a, Chelsea Terrace read, the score of gratitude alone Crawley would have sooner died than ruin Brooke's happiness.

HE IS TORN BY A TERRIBLE DESPAIR

For all that, there was a much stronger influence at work within him that the mere gratitude of a client to his patron. Brooke had, it is true, made Crawley just as he made lots of other people who were not necessarily at all grateful to him as they should have been.

As a matter of fact, in the case of Noel Crawley, Brooke had only anticipated by a few months the decision the great pioneer there is no shadow of doubt that the artist would sooner or later have achieved recognition and fame, for Crawley was a man in a million—genius. But Brooke undoubtedly burnt the immortal flame.

Brooke had always realized that—genius had been known to die unrecognized and fame did not always mean money, while money to Brooke was a sine qua non of existence, artistic or otherwise.

Crawley, it is true, was grateful to Brooke, perhaps over-grateful, in his heart of hearts, but if he had owed nothing to Brooke he would have been none the less fond of the man, proud of him as a personal friendship, and the two men were friends.

Beads of sweat started from his throbbing temples. Yes, he knew what he had done, he and Zoe. He had murdered Godfrey Brooke!

Brooke would go into the Leveredge Gallery and see his wife, and then he would know. Yes, Crawley felt it inevitable. He was paralyzed. He could hear the march of events. But he had not the strength to raise a hand to avert the catastrophe. What would be the good if he did? What would be do to prevent it? Nothing. For all is over Brooke will know. Yes, it is over. Hundreds of people must have seen the picture already. The sense of sick inertia which held him in his chair slowly increased. He felt drowsy and lethargic. He actually felt as if he did not much care. The thing was done. The blow had fallen. He was lost.

But the blow had not fallen; at least there was a grain of hope.

"Crawley, are you asleep?" he muttered thickly. "I must be mad to be sitting here like this. It must not be. I shall not be! He shall never know!"

The nightmare of inertia had passed. He was alive again, instinct with energy, desperate with resolve. Also a certain clearness of vision had come to him, a certain steadiness of nerve. He braced himself and glanced over his wristwatch. Half-past eight. If he always agreed with her the poor creature is completely at sea. It takes opposition to crystallize her emotions, and the husband who refuses to give him first aid to the undecided is a poor old thing.

"And there's another objection to the too agreeable husband."

"What's that?" asked the Bookkeeper.

"It takes away woman's excuse for not doing the things she doesn't want to do. If would so love to give to your public cause, but my husband won't let me," says the woman supreme. My heart is with you, and I would join your society for the Preservation of Superannuated Cats, but my husband has such a prejudice against cats," says the woman wilful. "I'm dying to have you visit me, but my husband is so nervous he can't stand company," says the woman who wants to avoid all unwelcome guest, and so it goes.

"The chief advantage of having a husband is that he is such a good scapegoat, and no sensible woman wants to be married to a man so amiable she can't even lay things on him."

"Have women no ideal of a husband?" demanded the Bookkeeper.

"Oh, yes," replied the Stenographer sweetly, "but they don't want to marry it."

"Right-o!" agreed the Bookkeeper.

A Bottticelli, previously worth ten thousand pounds, might any day be discovered by Maberley to be a poor school piece or a later copy, and realize in consequence less than a tenth of its previous valuation.

He was therefore a powerful man, and, despite ill-natured rumors to the contrary, was above suspicion. He was the last word in fifteenth and sixteenth century art.

Leveredge was the modern gilt. He could not tell a Ghirlandajo from a Filipino Lippi; but he knew the moderns inside-out, and he bought wisely and sold when the psychological and financial moment arrived. He had a flair for a bargain—he money nose. He discovered men. He marked them down in their student days and followed them. Sometimes, when it suited his book, he made them. Whatever he did he made money.

Noel Crawley, as he alighted from his cab, glanced nervously up and down the street, then at the artistic posters outside the entrance to the Leveredge Gallery—the posters announcing that Mr. Noel Crawley's new picture, "Circe," which had been exhibited at the Paris salon last year, was on view, with a collection of smaller paintings by several exponents of the Vicarage Secessionist School. A flag, bearing the inscription, "Circe"—the Picture of the Year"—dangled limply above the entrance.

Crawley shuddered. It was grossly vulgar, and he hated himself for ever consenting to such a parade of advertising methods. And yet—well, no one knew better than he what Leveredge could do for a rising man.

THE PROPHETOR GIVES NOEL HEARTY WELCOME

Even at this hour several smart motors were drawing up outside the gallery, and as he entered he met two or three prominent people coming out and bowed to them distantly. At another time he might have been interested and flattered. Today his thoughts were far away and bent on very different things.

Leveredge was a man of fifty or thereabouts—florid, portly, and overdressed. He looked the very last man in the world to know anything about art or beauty. His brown eyes showed too much dull white—a muddy white—and they were keen, for all that, and not unpleasant. They beamed benignantly as they fell upon as Mr. Leveredge held out two white, fat hands in welcome.

"My dear Crawley," he exclaimed, in his soft, lisping voice, "how glad I am to see you! How things are—well—rather dull today, but it's early yet. They'll come. We'll get our money back, my boy. But, by Jove, you aren't looking up to the mark. My dear fellow, you're looking wrong, eh?—what?"

Crawley shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, no, Leveredge; nothing at all. I—I want a business chat with you."

"With the pleasure in the world, old man," replied Mr. Leveredge, with perhaps a little undue emphasis. "What am I do for you, Crawley—eh?"

Crawley glanced sharply at the artdealer. He was no fool, and he realized the difficulties in his way. Leveredge's family, Mr. Leveredge; but, most of all, his awful danger and the desperate resolve which possessed him.

"Look here, Leveredge," he said, "will you—are you satisfied with the 'Circe' deal—eh?"

Mr. Leveredge started.

"Satisfied!" he murmured. "What do you mean? Why it's settled. It's——"

"I know—I know; but I was just wondering, because——"

"Not another 'if,' still!"

"No, hardly that." Now it came to the point Crawley found very considerable difficulty in actually saying what he meant.

"It was a big price," said Leveredge, smiling jovially; "I'll take a lot of working to get it back. A thousand pounds! Where! However, we took the risk, Crawley. We don't go back on our bargains. And I believe in you, as you know. Yes, Crawley, I believe in you, and I'm prepared, as you see, to back my belief."

"Had any offers for the picture?" asked Crawley fearfully.

How to Treat Skin Diseases

Both air and water seem to have a bad effect upon skin diseases like eczema, of which there are many forms. Keeping out the water and air is the first thing to do. By using Cadum ointment for skin diseases, air and water are excluded, because it has no petrolatum and white wax; and these form a tight covering over the sore places upon the skin. Cadum also contains oil of cade, which has been successfully used many years by the medical profession in the treatment of eczema and other skin troubles. If your skin is inflamed, irritated or sore, get a 10c. box of Cadum of your druggist and try it. People who have itched and scratched for years get rest and comfort immediately after applying Cadum.—Advertisement.

The Elephant in History

Our Ancestors Had Strange Ideas About This Now Well Known Animal

Elephants presented to King Alexander, from a French manuscript of the Fourteenth Century.

TO the citizen of today an elephant excites little more comment than a horse, yet the popular pachyderm was a centre of fantastic legend among our ancestors.

They built on a few facts as set forth in Strabo, Pliny and Plutarch a monster of rare imagination.

Cuvier accepted the existence in Cochin China of elephants sixteen feet high, and tales of such an animal were current in India to the end of the eighteenth century.

The tusks of the male were said to be larger than those of the female, and turned downward, hers turning upward; one was kept sharp to average injuries, while the other remained blunt to root up plants and trees for food.

The Rev. Edward Topsell, who collected practically all that had been written on the subject in his "Historie of Foure-Footed Beastes," argued that inasmuch as the horns of the elk grew out of his eyebrows and those of the rhinoceros out of his nose, there was no reason why the horns of the elephant should not grow out of his mouth.

He says, further, "hornes fall out and come again in old beasts, but teeth do not so; and, therefore, they are horones." The reputed habit of the female elephant to bury her shed "horna" is interpreted thus: Because she knew that she was hunted for those horns, she dug a grave and buried them, sitting upon the earth to press it down; this, lest their virtues being discovered, elephants should enjoy less peace and security. Indians and Africans desiring those horns (to use as posts for house building among other purposes) were said to find them in this wise—they set pots and bottles of water in suspected places and sat down to wait; when he "an unspeakable and secret attraction they (the tusks) draw all the water out of the bottle near them, which the woman taker for a sure sign and digzeth about his bottle till he finde the tooth."

Pliny thought the elephant's skin so hard that a sharp sword would not pierce it, the hide "alway hath crevices which by their savour do invite the little flies to a conflmul feaste; but when by stretching forth they have received the swarmes, by shrinking together again they close the flies, and so kill them; so that these crevices are unto them instead of mawes, tail, and hand."

The illustration shows an odd conception of the trunk. The artist may have read Pliny, who says:

"The elephant through his nostrils makes a sound like the braying of a hoarse trumpet."

About the year 1255 the French King presented to Henry III. the first elephant ever seen in England or, Mathew Paris believed, on that side of the Alps. The people, he says, "flocked to see the strange sight."

The arrival of that elephant must have caused a sensation. Here at last, for all to see, was that strange creature so nearly human that (according to Bartholomew) when sick it gathered good herbs, and ere eating "heaved up the head and looked toward Heaven and prayed for help in a certain religion;" which saluted the sun at his rising; which visited a certain river to purify himself by besprinkling his body with water ere he saluted the new moon.

Pliny said the elephant possessed in a degree, rare even among men, notions of honesty, prudence and equity; that his intellectual powers equalled his moral principles.

Mutanius, three times Consul, and therefore a person of probity, declared he knew an elephant who wrote.

The Romance of Lace

HARD indeed has been the lot of the thousands of women and girls who were wont to be employed making lace in Belgium. Their work was unique, although France and Italy have produced some wonderful lace.

France, however, really gained its knowledge of lace-making from Belgium, when Louis XIV. imported 200 workers from Flanders to teach the art. Lace-making ultimately became one of the great industries of France, but after a period of prosperity it declined, and the Revolution of 1789 almost killed it. In Belgium, on the contrary, both pillow and point lace have always held their own.

It is generally believed that pillow lace—i.e., lace made on a cushion or pillow with bobbins—was invented in Flanders, for the country was extensively engaged in its manufacture at an early date. Other countries have copied Belgium, but in none of them did the lace reach the pitch of perfection which characterized the Flemish make.

There was an interesting picture in the Church of St. Peter, in Louvain, dated 1495, painted by Quentin Matsys, in which was depicted the first experimention of lace as we know it—a girl working on a lace pillow. It is said that the famous old Brussels pillow lace was spun in dark, damp cellars, of such extremely fine thread that only one ray of light was allowed to fall on the thread that was almost invisible, as dry air would have made it too brittle.

The fact, by the way, may not be generally known that Valenciennes, the beautiful French pillow lace which has always been exceedingly popular, is now no longer made in the city from which it derives its name, the manufacture having been transferred to the Belgian city of Ypres. The making of Valenciennes lace was taught in most of the Belgian convents for poor girls and women, and in many families patchment patterns have been handed down for generations.

Malines, or Mechlin, too, was noted for its beautiful lace, but the manufacture has declined so materially that all good Mechlin lace is old. In the height of its career it was known as the Queen of Laces, being exquisitely light and filmy in texture, and was a special favorite for forming the gauzy muslins that were popular in the time of Marie Antoinette.

Tiring of Too-Kind Husbands

The Bookkeeper and Stenographer in Another "Right-O" Story

BY DOROTHY DIX

"WHAT do you think of that woman out West who has just gotten a divorce from her husband because he always gave her everything she asked for and never opposed her in anything she wanted to do?" asked the Stenographer.

"I think she didn't know a good graft when she had one, and it should be the feelish issue for her," retpied the Bookkeeper.

"To-e-e-e. Maybe so," said the Stenographer, "of course matrimony, with a husband like that would be one long grand song, but it would lack pep and zinger, and be apt to get on a woman's nerves."

"Huh. I should worry for that sort of a woman," remarked the Bookkeeper.

"Well," returned the Stenographer, "consider the matter. What would be the fun of working a husband for imported millinery if all you had to do was to ask for it and get it? It would be like taking pennies away from a blind baby."

"For my part," commented the Bookkeeper, "I should think that an elastic limb that could be pulled without trouble, or howls of agony, would be about the most attractive sideline of desirable qualities that a husband could carry. At any rate, in all the tied-up couples I know, the thing in that seems to annoy the wife most is the difficulty of extracting the coin from the family treasurer."

"That's true," agreed the Stenographer; "when a man surrenders his dows his wife with all his earthly goods, but as a general thing she has to chloroform him to get carfare out of him. But it's the closing line that gives sport and zest to domestic life. Every time a woman flams her lord and master out of a bunch of the long green she experiences all of the thrills of an old burglary successfully pulled off."

"Did you ever notice how a married woman goes to work to get what she wants?"

"She doesn't demand it as a right or ask it as a favor. She acquires it by subterfuge. Say she has set her heart on a new dress. She goes and picks it out. The next morning at breakfast she steers the conversation around to the subject of clothes. Hubby, being sorry, says so at the dinner hubby perceives that all his favorite dishes are set before him. Wife observes in an casual tone of voice that Mrs. So and So has a new dress. Business of profound thinking on hubby's part.

"Wifie remarks what a good noble, generous man, and what an ideal husband Mrs. So and So has. Still nothing doing, being slow, says nothing. After dinner hubby reserves that she's afraid hubband's business must be bad, and if it is of course she doesn't want to even think about a new dress. Husband grunts, and wife wipes a few furtive tears away. Hubby suggests, apparently of his own volition, that wife needs a new suit, and wife falls upon his neck in raptures.

"Now, do you suppose that woman would have missed all of that scene for any money? Do you think she would have enjoyed having that dress thrust at her the minute she suggested she wanted it? Not on your life. She feels that she has been a regular Talleyrand to bamboozle a husband into giving it to her, and every time she wears it she throws bouquets at herself to think how clever and dpuomatic, and deep she is."

"Women are queer fish," observed the Bookkeeper.

"Well," said the Stenographer, "there's one thing you don't want to forget: Married life for the majority of women is a dead level of monotony, in which they depend on their husbands to furnish the excitement of existence. That's the reason why the too easy man is not just lavishly with women. There is no sport, even if there is profit, in selling goods to a blind farmer."

"I should have thought that that Western man would have won out on his own, anyway," remarked the Bookkeeper, "he to argument propounded, doubtless makes a hit with the wife doesn't contradict my statements or take issue with my opinions."

"Women are built on a different plan," said the Stenographer, "a woman pines and yearns to be contradicted, because that is the only way she has of finding out what she really thinks. A married woman never knows what she wants until her husband tells her she can't have it, and even if he always agrees with her the poor creature is completely at sea. It takes opposition to crystallize her emotions, and the husband who refuses to give him first aid to the undecided is a poor old thing."

"And there's another objection to the too agreeable husband."

"What's that?" asked the Bookkeeper.

"It takes away woman's excuse for not doing the things she doesn't want to do. If would so love to give to your public cause, but my husband won't let me," says the woman supreme. My heart is with you, and I would join your society for the Preservation of Superannuated Cats, but my husband has such a prejudice against cats," says the woman wilful. "I'm dying to have you visit me, but my husband is so nervous he can't stand company," says the woman who wants to avoid all unwelcome guest, and so it goes.

"The chief advantage of having a husband is that he is such a good scapegoat, and no sensible woman wants to be married to a man so amiable she can't even lay things on him."

"Have women no ideal of a husband?" demanded the Bookkeeper.

"Oh, yes," replied the Stenographer sweetly, "but they don't want to marry it."

"Right-o!" agreed the Bookkeeper.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in the grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—MRS. JOSIE HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 24, Shamrock, Missouri.

Job Keeps Woman From Rolling Peanut

CHICAGO, April 29.—Four policemen were unable to protect Mrs. Rita Mae Free from the crowd that threatened to overwhelm her when she attempted to roll a peanut around the City Hall. Mrs. Free was paying the penalty for believing that Robert M Koetzer was going to be elected Mayor. After she had gone fifty feet she was compelled to give up because the police could not make a path through the crowd.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It.

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair in a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of Glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the skin, is not sticky nor greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 15 years younger."—Advertisement.

La Grippe and Colds

In La Grippe and Colds, Anti-kamnia (A-K) Tablets are unexcelled, as they stop the pains, soothe the nerves, and bring the rest so greatly needed by patients to restore the system to health. Physicians have used these tablets for over 30 years, in the treatment of colds, fevers and la grippe, and have found no other remedy more useful in these conditions. Anti-kamnia Tablets are as inexpensive, so pleasant to take, so satisfactory in their results, and so useful in all conditions where there is pain, that A-K Tablets should always be kept in the house for the time of need. Many of our ablest physicians obtain perfect results in la grippe and colds, by cleansing the system with Epsom salts or "Accolds," a very good cathartic putting the patient on a limited diet, and administering A-K Tablets every two or three hours. This treatment will usually break up the worst cases in a day or two, while in milder cases, ease and comfort follow almost immediately. Anti-kamnia Tablets are also unexcelled for Neuralgia, Rheumatic Pains, The Pains During Menses, Indigestion and Insomnia. All druggists have them.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K mark.

TEUTON FACULTY STIRRED BY POEM

German professors at Harvard, presidents of other New England institutions of learning, and C. Huntington Jacobs, author of the poem "Until Mist Lies," voiced their views to the disconnection of America's free speech" that has arisen following the letter of President Lowell of Harvard to Professor Kuno Meyer. Professor Meyer in stand a on his letter to the Harvard president protesting against the publication of the poem in the Harvard Advocate, a poem he called "damnable" and a breach of neutrality.

"The policy of freedom of speech we shall continue to pursue, for we believe it to be the only one which accords with the principles of academic freedom," declared President Lowell.

Professor John A Walz, head of Harvard's department of German, said he could see no harm in Jacobs' poem.

"It was written in very bad taste when there flowed the softer sentiments of the world toward a people to a poem like the "Until Mist Lies," which is such an offending attack on a German people.

"I don't think the poem should have been published, but when it is given what may well be taken as official sanction, it strikes me as poor taste. If the judges of the competition couldn't find any poem better than it to give a prize to, it seems to me that they ought to have withheld the prize upon a sonn.

"The idea that I can carry that Professor Meyer used such vehement language as is not a university and in freedom it could have expressed his feelings more decorously."

AUTHOR GIVES VIEWS.

Professor Walz indicated that his views are shared by other German members of the Harvard faculty.

Professor Kuno Francke spoke of the sarcastic defamation of the German national mote" Professor Hugo Munsterberg had "nothing to say."

The Harvard Crimson says, editorially:

"Because it was a good sonnet, and not because it was anti-German or anti-anything, Vot Mist Lies" received the prize. "Dieu Ayez Anne" written with equal skill would have received equal honor."

Charles Hunt also, lauds the Harvard junior who wrote the Advocate prize poem, said today:

My poem was inspired by such utterances as were contained in Professor Meyer's letter to President Lowell. This recognition of Mr. shows the counterirritate attitude of the German proposed duties in the country of it regarding the plaga and arguments of their opponents.

"I tell you, the dead rot at the heart of the German to pity to the general belief that the folks and no other are the chosen sons of God. Until Mist Lies," the title of my poem was prophesied on the imperial standard of the German Empire.

Dr. Adolph Hugo Munsterberg for his is a gentleman's position in this war controversy. He uses logic in giving to expict his beliefs and not vituperation

COLLEGE HEADS' VIEWS.

Dr. Herman C. Bumpus, president of Tufts College, said:

"I regret that Professor Meyer does not better understand American institutions, by I think we should allow him the same freedom of speech and action that we prize ourselves on enjoying."

Dr. George F. Herr, president of the Newton Theological Institute, said:

I think Professor Meyer is too too hi. He was evidently suffers it from an attack of nerves."

"It is only another evidence that Germany is badly served by her representatives in this country. Liberty of speech has been pushed to the limit in her behalf, and yet the Germans are not satisfied. They, too, will come to believe that the poor soldiers on the battlefield have been betrayed by the professors as well as the military men in their own country," said Ira N. Hollis, president of Worcester Tech.

GARY SPEAKS AT SUNDAY REVIVAL

(By International News Service.)

PATERSON, N. J. April 29.—Stimulated by the presence of James H. Gary, Ermon J. Hidgeway, "Big Bill" Edwards, Mrs Courtlandt De Lancey Kield, Frank W. Mumey and other notables on the platform, the Sunday pulled out the last stops in his bag of tricks last night.

Judge Gary gave Paterson a flattering start. At the revivalist's suggestion the steel man stood up in the pew and said: "I am ashamed of myself to spend a moment of your time to express my views on matters of the Sunday and the work. I am ashamed to him intimately many years and I know of few in the world who follow the principle on which he conducts his business. I will only mention what I have seen in his office. It is certain to be benefited if I make a start in business what he has done in the past. I would like to go to work for a Christian concern that lives the principles of Christianity."

TABERNACLE PACKED.

Twelve thousand people packed the tabernacle, many of them sitting in the sawdust, and heard Sunday preach the greatest sermon so far in his Paterson revival: "The Second Coming of Christ."

Big Bill Edwards heard him preach it in the afternoon and $10 hit the sawdust trail. The sum of $1,042 was collected at both meetings and was donated to the Paterson Day Nursery.

Sunday was the second appearance of Jesse. "I'll be as real as it was when he first came on earth.

"Baby will be taken from mother husband from wife. You'll be all line with the chauffeur in your Pierce Arrow. The chauffeur will be called suddenly to heaven and you'll have to run the car," he yelled.

Sunday referred to the European war thus

"I'm not going to butt into God's business. People ask me to pray for the end of the European war. I'm not going to butt into God's business. How do I know but the Lord is using the Allies to punish Germany for the higher criticism and heresies spread broadcast from Heidelberg and Leipsic."

VENGEANCE ON FRANCE.

"How do I know as but what the Allied fleet to drive the Turks from the Holy Land that Palestine may be restored to the Jews?

"How do I know but the Almighty is using the Kaiser's troops against France as vengeance upon French license and immorality and the rejection of the Saviour by God? Do you mean to tell me the Civil War wasn't planned by the Almighty?"

Billy pictured himself in heaven. He spoke with all the sportiness, and dressed each by name, asked them about biblical incidents. He complimented Joseph heartily on his conduct during the episode with Potiphar's wife.

Iowa Democrat Defies Bryan on Liquor Question

DES MOINES, Iowa April 29.—Secretary Bryan will not run the Democratic party in Iowa on the liquor question," was the declaration of Senator Hagemann, Democrat, in a heated debate between Democrats in the Iowa state on his local option bill.

Senator Hagemann's declaration was in reply to a statement by Senator Clarkson, Democrat, and author of the moist law repeal bill, saying the Iowa branch of the Democratic party would refuse longer to be the "agent of a beer trust and prain. Clarkson's letter followed a letter of instructions to a recent letter to a meeting of the state democratic central committee.

"We will not go in with Senator Hagemann," the letter continued, "and we are willing to have the democratic party in Iowa go to smash before we will be a party to the outrage."

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Gas, Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity (acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices). He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts bad fermentation, then our food, like garbage in a can, forms acrid fluids and gases which irritate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we belch sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and while it is effervescing and furthermore, continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acids, remove the fermenting mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement

Mrs. W. S. Butler's May Festival Rich in Features

"War and Peace" Dance Among the Chief Offerings

Solo dances will be a particular feature of Mrs. William S. Butler's May Festival in Mechanics building, which takes place Saturday afternoon and evening.

Flora Merrill has prepared an Oriental dance. Little Louise Brown, a clever toe dancer, will present "The Maid in the Moon." Muriel Crowell will contribute Spanish dances to the solo features, and specialty dances will include Mary Woodside, Caroline Brun and Glennis Mowatt. Dorothy Nash as the clown, Helen Mannard Helen Linehan as Scottish lassies, Ruby Lamb Parker as Cupid, Stella Proctor in oriental dances and Pauline Morton.

Miss Louise Butler and Stella Proctor will do an old fashioned cotillion. LeRoy Young and Amalia Burton will be seen in a modern dance.

The elaborate dance effects for the general community, in which there will be more than 100 dancers, will include "War and Peace." "War and Peace" depicts the horrors of warfare succeeded by peace and happiness. The "United States" is in old-fashioned dress story, with an impressive prince and a wicked witch.

GET COUPONS FOR BIG SUNDAY SHOW

The Scenic Picture Theatre of the Nautical Garden is attracting large crowds weekly on weekdays. The popular ballroom, on Boylston street, is open daily from 2 to 11 p.m.

Next Sunday there will be a big feature picture which is made a sensation.

The Boston AMERICAN has made arrangements with the management of the Scenic Garden Theatre by which its readers may enjoy the theatre at a special rate. A coupon will be printed Sunday which will entitle two persons to attend when presented with five cents. This coupon will be good any time during the week and will admit to the best seats in the theatre for what would ordinarily be the price of the Garden ticket.

Don't fail to use the coupon in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

REFUSE TO ANNUL DOCK CONTRACT

Chairman Edward F. McSweeney of the Directors of the Port of Boston declared today that the board was opposed to the annulment of the stevedore contract. He said that the Cunard company had made overtures for an annulment, but announced that the steamship line would have to appeal to the courts to annul the contract as drafted.

Under the contract the Cunard line is to furnish one-third of the $50,000 guarantee rentals, of the proposed new stevedore.

Chairman McSweeney said:

"The Cunard line must appeal to the courts if it wants the contract annulled, because we will not agree to it.

"The White Star line is in the Hamburg-American line shops are all tied up. These two lines, who also signed the contract to stand by the agreement, will be in line, in between the two, are up to its contract."

AUTOCARS HAVE STANDARDIZED DELIVERY SERVICE CHASSIS PRICE $1,650

Not only the performance of the car but the service back of it, is what counts with the owners of Autocar Delivery Vehicles. This is the way that Haskell, Adams Co., Wholesale Grocers, of Boston, put it:

"We have used Autocars for over two years and they have proven most satisfactory with very little expense. We are especially pleased with the service obtained from your company, the repairs at night allowing us to keep our trucks in service practically every business day of the year."

Completely equipped Service Stations in the leading cities provide every facility for Autocar owners. Ask Boston's leading concerns what they think of their Autocars. Call at the Autocar Sales and Service Company, Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, Boston, a factory branch of the Autocar Company, Ardmore, Pa., or write for catalog and list of 2,500 concerns using Autocars in every line of business.

Sox-Yanks Resume Series
Shore vs. Caldwell Today

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Were I as fun in wearing ear laps and buffalo robes at ball games and the baseball public as I am to the management for staging of the second scheduled battle between the Red Sox and New Yorks. The weather man sent along temperatures, but all I got to do was to burn. Those ear laps are for Fenway Park in midsummer, when for days on end the game quite early in the afternoon. They would not take a chance on frozen feet.

Provided that remarkable pitcher we are now having does not take another downward slump we may expect the Red Sox and New Yorks to line up in a contest of more than usual interest this afternoon. There is no need to enlarge the dope on that subject. Shore will be opposed by Caldwell, and the Red Sox fans have begun to wonder why Rube Caldwell looks to be a master of Smiling Bill.

After watching on the part of Red Sox would be appreciate the loyal fans. Our boys seem slow every year in getting their batting eyes. But the new boys batting at the right ought to hit, they are going down the league batting order, and sooner or later all pretenders to catch up with the leaders.

Speaker Not Hitting.

There is no way of accounting for Speaker's present lack of hitting. But he often begins the season on poor batting form. When he does come he comes with a rush. He always has for more than 900. His rivals, Cobb and Jackson, usually start out Examined the Balls.

In the only game there was considerable bickering of scrutinizing the ball that Keating pitched early in the game. Umpire Connolly took a look at several and threw out two or three on some reason or other. Later the New York players began examining the ball that Foster pitched, but could discover nothing.

The fact of the matter is that both clubs could use paper or any-

PLEASED WITH YANKEES.

Jack Barry is pleased in New York as a result of the showing of the Athletics in the spring training season. Connie Mack's team, which finished last in the American League race last year, has been strengthened by the addition of Eddie Murphy, Eddie Plank and Stuffy McInnis, all of whom were with the Athletics when they won the championship in 1911. Barry is also pleased with the showing of Joe Bush, a New York recruit, who has been pitching good ball in the spring training games. Bush is a right-hander and a recruit from the Norfolk team of the Virginia League.

Barry said recently: "I see more than a successful campaign by the New York Americans. I see a team that has a good chance to win the pennant, and a winning personality. I think the team will develop real fighting spirit."

Barry says that the American League race will be a battle royal between the Athletics, Washington, Detroit and New York. "Just as soon as the integration of the Athletics is complete," he says, "they will be the team to beat. They have enough veterans to win the championship, and I expect a repeat performance of last year."

President Timms of the Milwaukee club was in conference with Manager Dooin, and it was reported that he was to sign after Outfielder Ray Demmitt.

Harvard wears a very tough crew tonight this afternoon on Soldiers Field. The Crimson will have a hard tackle in the University of Virginia. The Charlottesville collegians have been playing good ball all season, while Harvard has shown very little.

Pete Mahan is [illegible] on the points for Harvard. Mahan has been in a good ball a season but in has been hitting regularly. Mahan has not had very little support as regards games won and lost. Brickley will be in centre field for Harvard. Brickley is a better ball player than the general run of college men except for his batting.

Travis Fripp who until last Saturday was in a hard batting slump, seems to be hitting good again. If Fripp continues to play the fine article of ball that he has shown in the last two games, he will be retained at third.

Flanagan or Flanagan will in all probability be given the pitching assignment for Virginia.

Virginia has a fast [illegible] and good batting club and with the exception of the game against Princeton has made it very interesting for all comers.

FRED YELLE IN MANCHESTER GO

By JACK CONWAY.

FRED YELLE, Taunton's light-weight pride, will hurl his well-known fist into the ring at Manchester, N. H., tomorrow night, when he battles Danny Ridge of New York in a twelve-round skirmish. Yelle is one of the classiest 133-pound glovemen in this section of the country and he has hopes of ultimately grabbing the dear old New England lightweight championship from Matty Adgwin.

Yelle will probably receive an opportunity to give Eddie Moore's protege the once over at the Mill in Lynn within a short time. If Johnny McGrath does not match Yelle with one of the star local lightweights, he will probably pit him against a boxer of his own weight who hails from outside New England.

ON boxing lovers will receive an opportunity to see some of the world's greatest boxers in action this year. Charley White, the second Chicago lightweight, will be in our midst next Tuesday evening. He will meet Eddie Murphy of South Boston in a twelve-round encounter at the Arena and a hard, close contest is expected.

White has made a swell record in the ring during the past couple of years. His most recent feat was to knock out Sam Robideau of Philadelphia in one round. Robideau had been traveling along the pugilistic highway at a merry clip until he was aligned to exchange blows with White. The latter started after the Quaker youth in the very first frame and scored with a dream smash after a couple of minutes of fighting.

WHITE has also beaten Willie Ritchie. He gave Ritchie a trimming back shortly before the californian lost his title to White. The Chicago boy was deprived of the highest honors in his boxing class on account of the law which does not allow a referee to render a decision in Wisconsin, the State in which Ritchie and White held their now famous combat.

Eddie Murphy has engaged in many friendly bouts with White and he believes he can defeat him. If he makes good his boast, he will be in a position to talk business with the leading lightweights in the country.

WALTER BUTLER, Beachmont's aggressive lightweight, informed us that he would like to secure bouts with any men of his weight in New England. Butler is a satisfactory performer and should not experience much trouble in keeping busy within a hemp ropes. Jetty Dowd, who has for Butler's business affairs, says that his protege possesses enough class to dispose of most of challengers for the New England lightweight championship.

HARLEY MEALEY, manager of Charley Beyers, also comes to bat with a well-worded challenge. He is anxious to match Beyers with Frankie Mack and lays great stress on the fact that his punch flingers scored a knockdown in his bouts with White held their now famous combat.

JACK, in the meantime, is not loosing any sleep. He is in splendid physical condition and is waiting for a chance to get a bout with Waldron, Gallant or Murphy. Mack is a fine boxer and a hard puncher and in our humble opinion he has enough ability to make things interesting for any boxer of his weight in the East.

JOHNNY BOYLE, the Lowell lightweight, is seeking matches with local boxers.

Boxing Bill Passes Michigan House

LANSING, Mich., April 29.—The House of Representatives passed Senator Haul's bill creating a athletic commission to control and regulate boxing exhibitions in Michigan. The vote was fifty-five to forty. The bill now awaits the signature of the Governor. Boxing contests have been illegal in Michigan.

CURLEY TELLS WHY BIG FIGHT WAS NOT STAGED AT JUAREZ

This is the third story of a series on the "Inside Story of the Johnson-Willard Battle for the Heavyweight Title," written by Jack Curley, the man who arranged the big fight. In this article he tells of the plans that were made to get Johnson through General Carranza's lines into Juarez, Mexico; how these failed, and then how he started for Cuba to make arrangements for staging the battle in Havana.

By JACK CURLEY,

Who Arranged the Willard-Johnson Match for the Heavyweight Championship of the World.

(Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.)

Shortly after my arrival in El Paso, I received word from Jack Johnson that he was sailing on the Highland Harris from Monterey on the January 11; that he would arrive at Barbadoes to change boats January 20, and, according to this schedule, would be in training quarters at Juarez on January 25. I kept posted on the movements of the Highland Harris and learned that on account of war conditions, the sailing from Montevideo was delayed a few days.

I forgot to mention that in my articles with Johnson it was optional for me to set the date any time between March 15 and March 25. My original idea was that March 17, St. Patrick's Day, and the anniversary of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, a logical day to attract fight-goers, would be the day; but for fear that some local arrangements would interfere with this, I asked Johnson to give me leeway of the two weeks to set any date to suit myself.

When I decided on Juarez, I learned that the Southwestern Cattlemen's Association held its annual meeting there from March 2 to March5; that it would probably bring five thousand sportively inclined cattlemen, and that if the Willard-Johnson fight could be billed to coincide with that date, at least five thousand would come that would not otherwise attend.

I readily agreed that if I could secure Johnson's consent, I would set the date for March 6. This was done for fear some one connected with the Cattlemen's Association would be against the fight or boxing in general. Johnson's reply came immediately as follows:

Johnson Was Willing and Anxious to Fight.

"Make it March 6 or any other cwa—r....p Hfbbbbbeks. IS SENSE? track. I will fight Willard on a telegraph strip."

Of course, no man ever possessed the great confidence in his own ability that Johnson had —in fact his appearance at Juarez absolutely impossible for any one to convince Johnson that his title was in danger.

I was then called to Cincinnati to look after my various affairs, and for a chance to get a bout with Waldron, Gallant or Murphy. Mack is a fine boxer and a hard puncher and in our humble opinion he has enough ability to make things interesting for any boxer of his weight in the East.

Johnson two days later to charter a special boat for Tampico, Mexico, and that it was not safe for him to touch Cuba. My cable was returned to me by a service message, saying, not delivered, party had left Barbadoes."

The next twelve days were very uncomfortable for me. Close friends, sporting editors of papers all over the country were wiring me for information about Johnson. I did not wish to give out that he was to touch Havana most any day, for fear the information would become valuable to those who wished to intercept the trip.

Wireless to Warn Johnson on Landing.

I could not tell them that we had arranged for Johnson to land at quarantine in Tampico, then to be ushered into Villa's territory, for fear that Carranza agents would intercept him there.

I sent several wireless messages to Johnson at sea, to tell him not to touch Havana, and that if he did could not get to Juarez a boat and get out of there as quickly as possible.

When I received a telephone message from a news bureau man at El Paso, giving me the glad tidings that he had an official report from the Carranza consul that Johnson had landed that day at Tampico, was passing through the lines unmolested, and that within forty-eight hours would be at Juarez, I told my friends that I could hardly believe the news, because Johnson could not possibly have made the trip from Barbadoes to Tampico in such a short time. But he assured me that he had it official. I told him I would be glad if it proved true.

To my great surprise I read in the morning papers of the next day, and found out later that the bureau report went all over the country that I had given out the news that Johnson had arrived at Tampico.

I wired every sporting editor friend I had in America not to credit the story to me, and that I did not believe a word of it.

Two days later I received a cable from Johnson at Havana telling me that he had arrived there and would leave the next day for Tampico as per instructions.

The next day I received a cable from John R. Fontaine and Dick Klegin telling me that Johnson was unwilling to proceed any further, and that they were doing all in their power for me and my interests at Juarez.

I laughed at this, knowing full well that no matter how willing Johnson was to proceed to Mexico, Robinson and Klegin would do their utmost to hold him in Havana, which I later found was true.

That day the powers at El Paso and Juarez got me to wire Johnson as follows:

"Charter special boat for Tampico. Under no circumstances take the regular boat that calls at Vera Cruz or Progreso, and if you should go on the regular boat under no circumstances get foot on shore in those places. Proceed to Tampico quarantine, where J. T. Baskin, our agent, will meet you and usher you into Villa's territory. Do not bring any baggage, because the roads are torn up and in some parts you will have to travel by hand-car and horseback. Book under the name of John T. Sherley, and under no circumstances bring any members of your party or else Baskin cannot handle you."

Johnson received this message while aboard the Morro Castle, about to sail for Tampico via Vera Cruz and Progreso.

I found out later, on my arrival in Havana, that all the promoters there moved heaven and earth, as it were, to keep him there, all picturing to him the terrible chances he was taking and the dangers if he would go to Mexico.

They told him that even if he got into Juarez and was allowed to win the fight he would never leave there with his purse money, if, indeed, he could leave at all.

Johnson paid no attention to these supposed warnings and was about to sail for Tampico when the captain sent word to all the passengers that the boat could not sail because General Carranza had closed the port of Progreso.

Hurry Call to Come to Johnson in Havana

As George V. Tuohey would say, "That spilled the beans," and so far as Johnson's progress to Mexico was concerned spoiled all chances. But let it be said for all time that in contrast with a lot of so-called champions and managers connected with the boxing game Johnson would not listen to anybody else, but those to whom he was under contract, giving them all the same answer:

"I am contracted to fight by Jack Curley, and I will not under any circumstances break my word or contract until absolutely satisfied that Curley cannot go ahead with his plans."

He cabled me to El Paso as follows:

"Impossible for me to leave Havana. You come here and see me immediately. I will stick to my contract until you release me; but come here at once."

When I received this message it was 2 a. m. at El Paso. The words "impossible to leave Havana" firmly convinced me that my previous information that they would hold him there was correct.

(Mr. Curley's next article will be published in tomorrow's Boston AMERICAN.)

Report Wheat of Dodgers Traded to the Giants

NEW YORK, April 29.—Although official confirmation is lacking it is reliably reported that Manager McGraw, in order to strengthen the Giants, has traded Pitcher Ferrit and Outfielders Murray and Robertson to Brooklyn for Zack Wheat, the hard-hitting left fielder of the Dodgers.

The report states that a money consideration also went with the three players. If the report is true, McGraw will have one of the best outfields in the country in Burns, Snodgrass and Wheat.

GREAT BOWLING MEET ON TONIGHT

Governor David I. Walsh will roll a specially engraved bowling ball down the new alleys at 8:30 tonight and officially open the great Atlantic Coast Bowling Association tournament at Mechanics building. This tournament is the greatest of its kind and Boston will as all the stars of the game in action during the course of the contests.

Every effort has been made by the directors of the association to have the best in every line. When the public flows in tonight it will see a tournament layout that will be astonishing. That success has been attained in the securing of entries is shown in the fact that the best bowlers of the country in the different styles of the game will perform.

Starting tonight, the pin-topping will go daily until May 15. It was at first planned to have the rolling start as early as 7 or 8 o'clock in the morning, but by popular request of the bowlers competition will begin at about noontime and continue until midnight.

For the first time ever in any tournament, three styles of bowling will be in vogue. Candle-pin bowling is confined entirely to New England. In sections of New England the little duck pins are the favorites.

MANY VISITING BOWLERS.

The visitors from New York city, the South and West are bottle-pin, or ten-pin shooters, but also use the duck pins. Until this tournament was started, these people had never seen, and some had never heard of candle pins. But, rolling a small ball against the duck pins makes them think that they will have a chance to do almost as well with the candle pins.

Some of the finest bottle pin smashers of the country in Glenn Riddell, Jimmy Smith, John Costa, Lee Johns and Mort Lindsey will be seen. Paul Poodler, the best of the candle pin bowlers, is entered for all styles in nine classes. Mrs. Ray Bowen, the champion woman ten-pin bowler, is another prominent entry, and she will not only bowl in different bowling events, but will take part in a match with Burton Mank, an officer of the association and a bowler of note.

STRONG NEW YORK TEAM.

Benjamin's New York team, composed of Jimmy Smith, Lee Johns, Billy Heins, John Costa, Paul and Bert Bergman, John Pump and Louis Wesphal, is the only team that has entered for all three styles.

Lined up with the Governor in the christening of the alleys will be Congressmen Gallivan and Tinkham and the officers of the association. After a few pompous preliminaries, the tournament will be in full blast. The Boston people will see bowling on an extremely large scale for the first time.

Would Match Glover with Freddie Welsh

Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion of the world, offers to meet Packey McFarland of Chicago at 142 pounds. Said George Freeman today: "If Freddie is willing to make the same concession to Packey Glover of South Boston, Mike is ready to meet him in a ten or fifteen-round battle. Failing to get Welsh into the ring with him, Glover is prepared to take on Mike Gibbons, Jimmy Clabby or any middleweights in the country. The South Boston star has been passed up by the promoters when they have arranged their cards, but Mike now intends to force them to recognize him."

Ryder Wins and Loses.

Ryder won and lost in his matches in the New England three-cushion championship at the Imperial room. Manuel proved an easy victim for him in the afternoon game, 50 to 37, but at night Carroll in a well played match defeated him, 50 points to 47.

WAIT & SEND BLACKSTONE NO CENT COIN Smooth, Cool, Aromatic

"The Rabbit's Column" By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

NEW YORK, April 29.—We took a day off yesterday and watched the rain while we rested up. The layoff will do us no harm. It can tell you, for the going has been quite strenuous since the season opened.

* * *

We are glad to get Pat Ragon on our team and we hope he will prove as valuable an acquisition as that other player we secured from the Brooklyns last season. I refer to Red Smith, whose batting in the opening game with the Giants did so much to give us a victory over McGraw's men.

* * *

Ragon is a big, strong man who can work as often as Stallings asks him to work. Just now, when some of our pitchers are a little backward in getting into shape, Ragon will come in handy to help out.

* * *

I have been looking up the dope on him and while figures often do not mean much in baseball, the fact that Ragon, last season, allowed less runs per game than any good pitcher as Mathewson, Perdue, Marquard, Demaree and others who pitched for first division teams, shows that he has the goods.

* * *

A merry war is brewing in the American League. I hear, over the calling of balks on the pitchers by the umpire. I understand that President Johnson has instructed his umpires to be very strict on the balk question this year. I am told that Boehling, the Washington left-hander, has been forced to cut out his so-called "balk motion."

* * *

Umpire O'Loughlin brought up the much discussed problem last week in Detroit, when he called a balk on Jim Scott, pitcher of the Chicago club, causing the Sox to lose the game.

It was the first time a balk had been called on Scott in his career, with the pitching motion which he has employed in recent years, according to his own announcement.

President Johnson of the American League watched Scott pitch the opening game of the season in the American League at St. Louis. The Wyoming pitching artist trapped three players off first in that game, and Umpire Nallin, who officiated on the bases, was quick to declare the runners out in each instance. Umpire Dineen, who called balls and strikes back of the plate, failed to penalize Scott for a balk.

* * *

In Detroit, on the first game of the series, Young was on third and Cobb on first base in the second inning, when Scott was working for the White Sox.

"Watch Scott nip Cobb off first base," said a Chicago scribe to a Detroit baseball writer.

Sure enough, the Death Valley flinger caught the Georgian attempting to make his getaway from first base. Cobb was trapped, but Manager Jennings came running in, yelling that Scott had committed a balk. Cobb, also, to save himself the humiliation of being caught off first, chimed in, and O'Loughlin caused a storm of protest when he signaled for Young to score and Cobb to take second base.

O'Loughlin was immediately surrounded by an angry mob of White Sox players, headed by Manager Rowland. "Silk" mentioned the belligerents aside and refused to be influenced by the arguments of the Sox leader.

"That is the first time in his life Scott has been penalized in this way," said Manager Rowland.

"I can't help it," replied O'Loughlin. "I have orders from the head of the league to stop the pitchers from committing balks. It kills base running and we intend to stamp it out."

* * *

One way for a southpaw pitcher to get a reputation for himself seems to be to join the Federal League, after having broken into baseball by the way of the Detroit club. Two gents who have followed this route are getting the headlines stuff with much regularity this Spring. The parties referred to are Frank Allen and Harry Moran.

* * *

Allen gained his greatest fame on Saturday, when he worked a no-hit contest against the St. Louis Feds. The only men who reached first base were four that were walked. Three of these got on in the first round, but all were left. Allen was discovered by Detroit, a half dozen years or more ago, when he was pitching for a little college in Tennessee. He was farmed South, without a trial, and came back to the big leagues by way of Brooklyn. That club he jumped last Fall.

AMATEUR BOXING BOUTS AT B. A. A.

For the first time in the history of the Boston Athletic Association, guests of members of the Boston Athletic Association who are members of some club affiliated with the A. A. U. will have an opportunity to witness boxing in the gymnasium of the clubhouse. The Athletic committee of the Boston Athletic Association have decided to hold the try-outs for the Canadian championships in the gymnasium on Monday evening, May 3, at 7:30.

The management has succeeded in obtaining the entries of those experienced amateurs who have made the best showing in special bouts in various championships this year, and indications point to having one of the best amateur boxing shows ever held in New England, as there will be no need of eliminating novices from the various classes. The bouts are limited in number and only the very best boys will be seen in each class. Gold and silver medals will be awarded in each class, and as a special incentive, the winners will be sent to Montreal for the Canadian championships.

In the 125-pound class entries have been received from John Emery, Harry Carlson and John J. Sullivan, which will be the first tournament this year in which these three men have met. Henry Brown, who won the recent Crescent Athletic Club tournament in Brooklyn and the tournament at the New York Athletic Club, will be one of the favorites in the 158-pound class.

In the heavyweight class there will be several entries, one of whom has a good chance to defeat Jim McDonald. Tickets for this tournament for members of clubs affiliated with the (A. A. U. must be secured through members of the B. A. A.

Work Now the Watchword for A Coupon in Each American

By Monday next, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, all coupons of Series "B" must be sent in. If mailed they must bear a postmark not later than 5 o'clock p. m. on that day. None will be accepted if brought or mailed after that hour.

The American hopes soon to be able to give the names of candidates and relative standings so far in the contest. For this reason it is most important that everyone bend his or her best efforts towards making a bigger showing in Series "B" than in Series "A" and in Series "C" than in Series "B".

This is the time in the race when concentrated effort will tell the story. Do not give up for one moment—remember that the harder your labor the bigger the results will be, and after all, it's worth while to put in a little extra effort when you think of the reward that will be yours if you win for yourself a place on the American's DE LUXE train to the Pacific Coast.

For a few weeks of consistent endeavor you are liable to gather in enough votes to make you one of the fortunate twenty-five who will go across this big continent as guests of the American—all expenses paid and everything done to make you enjoy three weeks of luxurious travel and educational sightseeing.

Admissions to the Expositions at San Francisco and San Diego and side trips at the important places en route will be paid for by the American.

You will make your headquarters at the very best hotels along the way, you will partake of the best meals, you will enjoy the most commodious accommodations and you will know what it seems like to have your every reasonable want anticipated and fully satisfied.

The American, in planning these tours, has made them as perfect as money and ingenuity can devise. They are the last word in up-to-date trips.

Wherever it has been possible along the journey from here to the Great West the American has arranged for the tourists to stop, provided there is anything worth seeing. The tours really will give an adequate idea of the United States. Three weeks is a long time—every day of it will be used to the best advantage. The tourists will realize when they return that they have accumulated a vast store of knowledge and that their mental horizons have greatly broadened. They will no longer think (if they do now) that the East is the only part of the world that is worth living in.

They will get lasting impressions of the wonderful country to the west of the Mississippi and see the marvelous growth of sunny California, with its orange groves, its orchards and its magnificent valleys resembling more an earthly paradise than any other spot on earth.

They will traverse the Rocky Mountains and secure a speaking acquaintance with Denver, Chicago, Colorado Springs, Albuquerque and many other cities and towns.

And when you remember that the American, not content with doing all this, will award besides $1,250 in gold for extra spending money to the tourists, you may begin to have an inkling of the reason why so many are working to come under the wire among the first twenty-five in the race.

It is not so long now—the contest closes on July 3d—that is, the last vote coupon is printed on that day, and on July 24 the guests of the American start on their delightful journey.

Yesterday marked an important epoch in this competition —exactly one-third of the contest being over with the publication of yesterday's coupon. So you see how the time which, perhaps seems so long to some, has slipped by. And it does not require any intense imagination to understand that the remaining two-thirds of the contest will go even more quickly.

So, waste not a single minute—round up the all-important vote coupons and, in so far as it is possible for you to do so, insure for yourself NOW a place on the American's DE LUXE Pullman train which leaves Boston on July 24th.

CANDIDATES! CAUTION! If any newsboy or newsdealer sells or attempts to sell a copy of the Boston Daily or Sunday AMERICAN, with the Voting Coupon cut out or missing, please report the fact at once to the Contest Manager, Main 5180. Every copy of the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN from now on, to and including July 3, will contain a Voting Coupon and candidates and their friends should insist upon receiving an entire paper. Candidates should instruct their friends to examine Page 2 of the paper, both Daily and Sunday, before accepting same from newsboy or newsdealer. If the coupon is missing, notify this office at once. Look for the coupon in each paper you purchase before you accept same.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened on a higher level and were active. Almost all important issues showed early gains in Boston and New York. Issues to advance substantially on the latter exchange included Pressed Steel Car, American Locomotive, New York Air Brake, Amalgamated, New York Central. Rock Island was weak. It is believed by many market students that liquidation of American stocks by foreigners is about over. A London cablegram says "There was a rally in Americans on the exchange following the strength in New York yesterday. U. S. Steel and the high-priced issues were the leaders."

MANY STOCKS ADVANCED.

Among the gains in New York were Amalgamated ⅞, American Can ¼, American Sugar ¼, Lehigh Valley ¾, N. Y. Central 1, Reading ⅝, Southern Pacific ¼, Union Pacific ⅛, U. S. Steel ⅝, United Fruit ¼, American Locomotive ¼, Baldwin Locomotive 1⅝, Goodrich ⅝, Maxwell Motor 1½, Pressed Steel Car 3, Studebaker 1, Distillers' Securities 1 and General Electric 1¾. A number of these issues had lost part of their gains. Among declines were Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Canadian Pacific ⅝, Kansas & Texas ⅝, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Westinghouse ⅝, and Rock Island ⅝.

STEEL INDUSTRY CONDITION.

The steel trade appears to be holding its own, the Iron Age says, and leaders in the industry are satisfied to do that, under all conditions. While the expansion looked for as Spring advanced has not come, the average 70 per cent. rate of operations keeps up, and with some large producers the total of April orders will make a better comparison with March than seemed likely early in the month. The Steel Corporation's statement, showing March earnings one-third more than the total for January and February, reflected the much better showing for the second quarter and the very poor prices—even poorer than was generally known—realized on January and February shipments.

EDITH MAY VEIN.

As regards the cutting of the Edith May vein by North Butte miners, a Butte dispatch says eight feet of ore were found of which three are high grade. It is understood in Boston, according to a cablegram received, that the vein is fifteen feet wide where cut and three and one-half feet are of high grade material. From four to five feet are low grade; it is said. The mine management admit the discovery is very satisfactory.

BANK OF ENGLAND REPORT.

The Bank of England reports a decrease of $1,630,000 in bullion and a decrease of $2,340,000 in total reserve. For the week, the decrease from of its reserve to liabilities is 17.80 per cent., against 18.60 per cent last week. Clearings through London banks are ($249,589,000, against £288,240,000 last week and £351,615,000 last year.

BOSTON AMERICAN

50 AND 52 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, APRIL 29, 1915.

We Must Not Stunt a Splendid Agency of Instruction by an Un-American Censorship

The bill now pending in the Legislature proposing to permit some public official to prohibit a moving picture exhibition, if in the judgment of THAT individual it might tend to stir up race or religious prejudice or incite a breach of the peace, would establish an un-American, dangerous, revolutionary precedent.

It is an attack upon the freedom of the press which for centuries our fathers cherished and protected at any cost. In the broad, constitutional sense, in the sense in which the term "liberty of the press" is used, it includes any appropriate and usual medium for disseminating public information and instruction.

It is necessary that free citizens should have the freest access to such information and instruction as THEY, not some public censor, deem important to their task of deciding public questions. So carefully has the liberty of the press been guarded by our wise ancestors that the courts were not allowed to prohibit the publication even of what could be proved to be false and libelous. Our far-sighted progenitors considered it a prudent principle of liberty rather to suffer the harm of a licentious press than to suffer the damage of an unfree press. In the old days public speaking and printed matter were the only media of this necessary knowledge for the people. Therefore, a free speech and free press came to be the definition of liberty.

But now has appeared that great modern institution, the moving picture show. In less than five years it has become a wonderful means of spreading popular knowledge. Its capacity for public instruction has not yet even been surveyed. It has already taken its place among the processes of a free government. It has already become entitled to the freedom of the press, even though it be in its infancy.

Even if it were not objectionable because it violates a great, time-tried principle of liberty, this bill would be objectionable because in its practical operation it would foment the very strife which its authors seek to allay.

This ill-considered proposal is far more likely to stir up race and religious feeling than to suppress it. Consider how it must work. If the power to censor such an exhibition is reposed in a Governor who happens to be a Catholic and a protest comes from some hot-headed Jewish or Protestant society, who will judge him calmly or reasonably whatever he may decide? Suppose the power is given to the Mayor of Boston, and he happens to be English or French-born, and the Germans protest against an exhibition which they think is unjust to the Germans. Will it not cause bitterness, however he decides the controversy? If it is against the Germans they will accuse him of being more British or French than American. If his decision is favorable to the Germans the French and British sympathizers will accuse him of playing politics and subordinating his duty to his ambition.

Do not the provisions of this bill open the door wide to the hypocritical, mercenary, professional, religious and race agitators who vex the country so often with their pestiferous activity? In every imaginable case, would this proposed law not drag the government into race and religious controversies which by law and scrupulous practice it has avoided since the beginning of the republic? And when the government is thus involved, what would have been only a passing flurry is liable to become a serious storm.

In this particular case the colored people need to fear no harm from an exhibition that does not truly portray their character and their remarkably gentle virtues. The loyalty and devotion of the negro character is extolled in a hundred pages of our literature to one which contains a hostile comment.

Everybody knows that there are vicious men in every race, and that they vary not according to the race, but according to its numbers. Everybody knows that during the Civil War, when almost the entire Southern white population was at the front and the isolated women were left to the tender mercies of the negro slaves in the vast South, they were safe.

Everybody knows that the trouble came from the depravity of the white Northern politicians who went down South to graft, and who used for their corrupt purposes the vicious element among the negroes just as they would have used the vicious element among the whites under similar circumstances. The crimes of the reconstruction days were attributable more to vicious Northern whites than to vicious negroes.

A race can be libeled, but it cannot be really harmed by misrepresenting history. So we ought not to overthrow a principle of liberty in a vain attempt to prevent a harmless libel.

Even if we were quite sure that the power to regulate the moving picture shows in the spirit of the pending bill would not be abused, yet it would be a dangerous precedent, existing, always ready for abuse whenever in worse days there should arise those who would dare to abuse it. The liberty of a free people is not protected by ignoring a danger because it seems to be distant; and not heeding it until it has actually sprung upon us and holds us in a death grapple. That is not the way the men who founded the republic preserved their freedom. Let us remember the reason Edmund Burke in the British Parliament gave for believing that Great Britain could not deprive America of her rights:

> "In other countries the people, more simple, judge of an ill principle of government only by an actual grievance. In America they anticipate the evil and judge of the pressure of the grievance by the badness of the principle. They augur misgovernment at a distance and snuff the approach of tyranny on every tainted breeze."

The provisions of this bill would have prohibited "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which probably contributed more than any other single event to the freedom of the colored people, more even than Lincoln's and Charles Sumner's and Wendell Phillips' speeches. The South maintained at the time that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was a travesty upon the character and the life of the Southern people. There is not a Southern-born man or woman today who does not denounce with ill-suppressed excitement "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

There is no censor, acting under the power proposed to be given in this bill, who would not have been obliged to have found that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" tended to promote racial hatred and tended toward a breach of the public peace, thus making it unlawful under such a bill as that now pending.

In the future the great creations of literature will be reproduced to the mass of the people through the moving picture film. Shall we stunt this splendid agency for popular instruction by an un-American power of censorship?

Good morning; are you a "poisonous mugwump?" No; we don't know what a poisonous mugwump is, but Col. Roosevelt was warned by a Republican boss to beware of them. Sounds like one of T. R.'s own expressions.

Thaw is to have a jury trial as to his sanity. How about establishing the sanity of the jurors after a few sessions of listening to the alienists?

To the cry of "Swat the fly," Philadelphia adds the slogan "Bat the rat." If this keeps up we'll be hearing "Slug the dog," "Raus the mouse," and goodness knows what else.

Kind European has invented an antiseptic bullet. Evidently feels that it's a shame to kill a man with an unhealthy slug of lead.

Joffre has just fired twenty-nine generals. This makes the general a real hero to the commander-afraid-of-his-cook.

Since King George has taken to barley water, Auld Lang Syne will doubtless be changed to:

We'll take a cup o' barley water yet.
For the sake of Auld Lang Syne.

THE UNATTAINABLE

By GERTRUDE WEIL

SOME girls are pretty, some girls are witty, others are very wise,
But seeking where maidens are wont to meet,
From the hour the cock crows until the sun dies,
You will find that the girl with the face so sweet
Is often the girl who eschews talking sense.
When you chat with the lady we cite in this case,
You are soon steeped in ennui—the pauses are tense,
And you find that the dove with the dimpled face
Is just a drab, whitewashed sparrow.

Perhaps the girl with the sparkling wit, the adept at trite retort,
Whose words on winged steeds always seem to take flight
To your mind seems to be the best sort,
For some gullible fish for that bait always bite.
Soon you find you're the butt of her sarcastic laugh,
And if wit cannot brighten without making sport,
Why, it's all on the surface and nothing but chaff,
No pearls are with rubbish so cheaply wrought.
And the wit is the shrew of tomorrow.

Now you think that the cause of deep thought I'll espouse,
The girl who a knowledge of science can show.
Well, it's needless to say she's a plain little mouse,
Or else an untidy, big, bossy scarecrow;
And though she can talk about stars and the moon,
She's not envied her knowledge or learning by half,
For she's never been out on a real spoony spoon
Where a man was the angel and music his laugh,
And short with Miss Wisdom you'll tarry.

There's a type I've not listed, she's not often found,
Though her virtues are many her numbers are few,
Endowered with beauty and reasoning sound,
Truthful and fearless with heart of true blue,
She's as rare as the fleece that the knights sought of old,
Nor easy of conquest by egotist male,
But when courted and won worth her full weight in gold.
In the quest of this lady you'll most likely fail;
But she is the girl you should marry.

Is Marriage a Sacrament?

By REV. MABEL IRWIN

EITHER it is a sacrament or else it is a sacrilege. There are no half-way houses in marriage. Either it is a case of mutual love or it is not, and when it is not nothing can make it sacred, sane or wholesome. It is a sacrilege of the most disastrous kind, not only in point of view of the individual happiness thus sacrificed, but of the race itself. Any marital union that is not the result or expression of love-attraction is not only a sacrilegious union, but is uneugenic to the last degree.

We hear so much these days of eugenics as the science of human breeding—breeding by selection, not of the individuals themselves, but by some outside person or agency supposed to be better qualified to select than those most vitally concerned—some one better able to determine how these should mate.

I can conceive of no greater misconception of the basic meaning of eugenics than this. It is to count nature and her superlative law of attraction as of little importance, and to put in its stead the crude judgment of man—himself but a product of nature and of nature's God.

One might as well attempt to determine and condition chemical affinities, tell hydrogen and oxygen that it must not mingle as H_2O to produce water, as to attempt to decide for another whom he shall wed.

There may be—and often are—hygienic reasons why a marriage may not, in wisdom, be consummated with a given person at a given time, but there never can be a good reason why a marriage should be consummated at any time without love as its basis.

A one-sided love is not sufficient; the love must be mutual. For a girl to wed simply because she is "getting on" in years, or to "get rid of a man" who pursues her, or for a man to marry a girl to augment the fortune already his, is a blunder of the worst sort. Nothing of happiness or good can come of it, unless, indeed, the pain and discipline bound to follow shall lead to ways of wisdom.

I once knew a beautiful woman who, out of pity, married a poor blind man, and when I said, "Why did you do such a thing?" she replied, "Did you not know that marriage is for discipline?" Well, it proved to be so for him at least, for three months later the poor man stopped up the cracks of the door to his room and turned on the gas, and they found him dead!

Discipline forsooth! Marriage is meant to be heaven, not purgatory, which I know it all too often is.

Ellen Key, confessedly not knowing the solution of the vexed problem of the sexes, sees plainly some things that must not be, one of which is "unmutual love." "It should be branded upon the souls of our girls in letters of fire that to give themselves in union for anything less than mutual love is to become a fallen being." We may add that this is true of man as well as of woman, save, perhaps, that he has not so far to fall as has she.

Platonic love—companionship of the intellect alone, comradeship, likeness of taste and social position, even physical perfection and health of body in man and woman, should all be held as secondary when contemplating marriage unless, added to these, there be that subtle, undefinable law of attraction which makes each to delight in the presence of the other, drawing together like the magnet the steel. Unless this condition be met nature can give us no warrant that a new and superior race may be born.

Love comes not from below; it is from above. It is the flowering of the soul in the garden of the heart wherever wedded bliss is found.

"There is but one entrance to the sanctuary, and that is by the way of the sky."

In-Shoots

Lots of men would be popular if they would leave their opinions in cold storage.

When we can love the men who read gas and electric meters we are real Christians.

As a rule, the sinner has to experience a physical and financial swat before remorse ever grips him.

The greater the distance between us and the old homestead the more attractive it always seems.

If some one was around to crank them up occasionally a lot of fellows that we know would prove to be useful citizens.

When it comes to the matter of postponement tomorrow is as far away as the next century.

Support the Governor by Making the Concealment of Taxable Property a Crime

The gentlemen who are backing the constitutional amendment allowing a discrimination between the taxation of real estate and the taxation of personal, intangible, invisible property, which has so long been concealed and has so many years escaped taxation, are now showing the cloven hoof.

During the agitation of recent years those who opposed this amendment have charged that it was intended to make an unjust discrimination against real estate and property which could not be moved out of the State, and in favor of the rich who own stocks and bonds which they can conceal and ARE concealing. In other words, the opponents of this taxation amendment have repeatedly accused its advocates of a conspiracy to legalize tax-dodging in this Commonwealth. Its advocates have earnestly denied this charge.

Governor Walsh was plainly disturbed by the fear that there might be some truth in this charge, and although he believed that when a large element in the community want to submit to all the people an important public question they have a right to do it, yet he also believed that the true inwardness of this movement for a change in the taxation law should be thoroughly tested, and the sincerity of those who were behind it should be given an opportunity to reveal itself.

Therefore, in his recent message advocating the passage of this amendment he called upon the Legislature to pass also, AND AS A CONDITION PRECEDENT TO THIS AMENDMENT, laws which would stop tax-dodging under the present constitution. He urged upon the Legislature the passage of a law which would compel men who own stocks and bonds which they are concealing from the public authorities to be compelled to reveal their possessions under oath and under the pains and penalties of perjury.

It has been one of the farces of our taxation law that the house a man owns, his place of business, his machinery, his farm, his forests, his ploughs, anything that cannot be concealed in a vault or moved out of the State, must be taxed to the limit, while wealth in stocks and bonds may be hidden away without any legal obligation or penalty on the part of the owners for making a true statement of what they possess in order that it may bear its fair share of the cost of government. Not to compel men who own stocks and bonds to make a true statement of their wealth, under the penalty of perjury, is to put a premium upon and to invite these wealthy people to dodge their taxes, which the man who owns his home or his farm or business cannot do, and for this reason is obliged to pay not only his own share of the taxes, but the share which the other men are enabled to dodge.

If the gentlemen who want to pass this taxation amendment are sincere and are not conspiring to legalize tax-dodging and to put a further penalty and burden upon real estate and the property which cannot be concealed, then they will support the Governor's proposal for the passage of a law to make it a crime for the owners of all this intangible property further to conceal their possessions.

Think of it, citizens of Massachusetts! More than four thousand million dollars today is being concealed for the purpose of dodging taxes. It does not make any difference whether you own property or whether you pay rent or buy provisions, you are all equally interested in this question. You pay the tax just the same when you pay rent on your house, and you pay the tax on the grocery and provision man's business when you buy goods of him. All should be equally interested in this important question of equal taxation.

Let the gentlemen who are behind this amendment show their sincerity by standing with the Governor and passing this bill to make the concealment of property here a crime, or let them confess that the whole movement is nothing more than a tax-dodging conspiracy.

Science for Workers

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—"If a solid metal is made of several compounds and it is wanted to find what they are, and respective proportions, how would chemists proceed? A claim that no matter what metals they are they can be dissolved in acids and then analyzed. It claims that to a certain extent this is true; but how can a metal such as platinum be determined when it cannot be dissolved by acids?"—R. H. P., New York City.

A.—But platinum is dissolved by aqua regia, a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids. No acid known to chemists, alone, will dissolve this metal; but these two combined, in the proportion of one volume of nitric and three of hydrochloric, will.
